VISALIA BOARD OF TRADE, Visalia, Cal., April 8, 1895.

C. M. SHORTRIDGE, Esq.,

Proprietor of the "Call," San Francisco, Cal. Dear Sir: Appreciating your efforts on behalf of the city of Visalia to secure the line of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley road to pass through our city I desire to thank you on behalf of the Board of Trade and the citizens, and to say that we have not lost sight of the most principal features, namely, the "Call's" pledges. While this is not generally known, I will say that we have a committee out at the present time and we are now securing the pledges, and our committee will continue the good work as suggested by the Call in this county, and, as a consequence, many until every shipper in our vicinity has signed the pledge. So far we have been very successful and every shipper has willingly signed the Call's pledge.

Three Companies Must Be Immediately Mustered Out.

SECTIONAL LINES OPPOSED.

The Conference Fails to Arrive at Any Definite Conclusion.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 10.—There was a council of war in the gubernatorial reception-room this afternoon, called together by his Excellency for the purpose of consulting as to the best method to be employed in the reorganization of the National Guard to conform to the new law passed by the late Legislature, which provides that the military force of the State must consist of three brigades, instead of the present number, which is six, and these brigades must consist of sixty-nine companies instead of seventy-two.

Major-General Dimond opened the campaign by stating that he was under the impression that the new law did not go into effect until May 1, but Governor Budd decided that it went into effect immediately and that instant action was necessary.

Brigadier-General Dickinson then suggested that the National Guard be reorganized on the following basis: The First and all other companies south of the Tehachapi Mountains to be included in the Third Brigade.

Governor Budd filed an immediate obwas opposed to any geographical division, made with regard to north and south. There had already been too much talk and to stimulate the sentiment that seemed to be rapidly growing toward a division be- warm discussion. tween the sections. He had made a study of the question and thought it advisable to include the whole of the San Joaquin Valley in the district south of the Tehechapi in one brigade, the coast counties in another, and the Sacramento Valley counties, north of San Joaquin, should constitute the third.

"I did not study this question as a map," continued his excellency, "but on account of defense or attack, and while we are reorganizing we may as well do it for service. I am also in favor of not only cutting out the three or five companies necessary to Folsom is in operation. conform with the new law, but all companies that are slack, even if we go below the limit."

a general laugh and the colonel retreated in confusion.

General Montgomery of Chico made a sudden attack upon the assemblage by saying; "It seems to be agreed that from three to five companies must be mustered out, what companies must go?"

"You're ahead of time, general," said his Excellency. "We must wait and find out." It was then suggested by a member of the council that two companies in the southern portion of the State and one in the northern were not up to the standard, nor within a mile of it, but that this was a matter for future consideration. General Dickinson thought the selection of the companies to be mustered out should be left until after the annual inspection, which would take place in six weeks, and in the meantime a quiet investigation could be instituted among the headquarters of the various companies for the purpose of ascertaining their efficiency. Governor Budd declared that the companies should be mustered out immediately, as the new law only provided for the payment of $100 to each of the sixtynine companies, and he wanted it distinctly understood that from this time on the various companies must actually expend from 8 o'clock until 12.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 10.—At a meeting of the local board of Fire Underwriters this evening, it was agreed members should cease rate-cutting for the present. This resolution is not likely to improve the situation, however, as two of the companies outside the union are slashing rates right and left, and members of the board are compelled to meet the cuts in self-protection. The companies referred to are taking risks for almost nothing, and the board is endeavoring to force them into the compact, and put an end to the ruinous competition.

Fresno's Forgery Case.

FRESNO, CAL., April 10 .- The original features in this, the third day's hearing of the Sanders forgery trial, was the introduction by the prosecution of new evidence to show that William Wootton, the missing Reedly rancher, was not with Sanders ton ranch on the evening of February 1 of last year.

M. M. Record and Newton Wiseman, the new witnesses, saw Sanders driving on the road to Reedly only a mile from the Wootton house, and were positive there was no one with Sanders.

This testimony, while of little value in the forgery case, is held to strengthen the opinion of the detectives and experts that Wootton never left the house alive and that his body is hidden somewhere around the house. A number of witnesses were called to testify as to the references made by Sanders to Knausch and Graves, the mysterious individuals whom no one but Sanders has seen and who, after a whole year's search, still remain undiscoverable by either the prosecution or the defense. Testimony bearing directly on the forgery charge will be taken to-morrow

Sympathizers in the Cause for Independence Receive Some Encouraging Reports.

TAMPA, FLA., April 10.—Late reports from Havana assert that the steamer Manulita has arrived from Santiago with over 300 wounded Spanish soldiers. They were taken to the hospital steamer because the hospitals at Santiago are crowded. A letter from Santiago mentions a battle at Trosenes, near the Cantor River, in which the Spanish general, Salceda, with 1000 men engaged a band of revolutionists under Rabi. The Spanish loss was said be 380. while the Cuban loss was 4 killed and 39 wounded. As if to atone for the conditions, atmospheric and otherwise, which rendered the trial of two weeks ago so unfortunate, everything was auspicious.

There Seems to Be No Way of Filling Vacancies in the Quorum.

THE PROPHET AND THE ANGEL.

An Interesting Conversation From Which Sprung the Church of the Saints.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 10 .- Contrary to expectations, the quorum of twelve and Joseph Smith did not bring any revelations from the other world to-day. If the quorum does not have a revelation soon concerning some of the great matters of church government some of the saints and all the laity will grow very weary. Since the beginning of this conference the most intense interest has been shown in all, of these sessions, the principal attraction being Joseph Smith, son of the great prophet and himself a seer of highest standing. But the head of the church has not revealed anything.

Beyond presiding over the business sessions he has brought nothing to alleviate the anxiety concerning the vacancies which have existed for forty years in the quorum of twelve. The rank and file appear to have reached the conclusion that there is too much "one man" power in the church. The president and the twelve have been in the habit, it is claimed, of disposing of all mooted questions by quietly referring them to the "next conference, one year hence. This has displeased the elders and their followers, and now they propose to have a change in the system of presenting and passing upon questions of

The story of Joseph Smith's conversation with the angel Mormoni, from which sprung the Mormon church, was the main feature of to-day's session of the conference. The story was told by Mrs. Catherine Salisbury, Joseph Smith's sister, and the last survivor of his immediate family.

Mrs. Salisbury is 83 years old, but she claims to recall the time of the wonderful vision as though it were but yesterday. She told how the angel had come to her brother in the night, and had stood in a glow of white light midway between the talked for hours, telling where the golden record was to be found on the hill of Conoran. And then she told how the plates had been found, and after much tribulation on account of mobs of evil men, they were translated, and how the church of Jesus Christ was founded. At the afternoon session the resolution providing for the establishment of the 'Order of Enoch' was laid over until the next conference. The only other business of importance considered was a motion to transfer the publication of the Herald, now issued at Lamon, Iowa, to Independence. The matter was laid over until to-

HYPNOTISM CUT NO FIGURE. Justice Horton of Kansas Explains a Remarkable Case.

TOPEKA, Kans., April 10.-The papers throughout the country have very generally announced that through the decision handed down on Saturday, the Supreme Court of Kansas recognized hypnotism as a defensive plea in a charge of murder Chief Justice Horton in an interview to day says: "The inference is wholly unwarranted. A man named Gray procured a gun and incited McDonald to kill one Patten. Gray made McDonald believe that Patten was traducing the character of Mrs. McDonald. All were residents of Sumner County. McDonald, who did the killing, was acqitted. Gray was convicted in the lower court and the Supreme Cour affirmed the decision. The case was known as the Hypnotist McDonald case, and was not presented to the Supreme Court. If it had been, and the same evidence presented to the United States against Gray had been presented against McDonald, the Supreme Court, had it the power, would have ruled for McDonald's conviction. The acquittal of McDonald seems to have been a miscarriage of justice."

APPROVED BY DIRECTORS.

Indorsement of the Plan for the Reorganization of the Atchison.

Methods by Which Interests of the Stockholders Are to Be Protected.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 10.—The board of directors of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Company met to-day and issued the following circular letter to the stockholders of the company:

When your directors were elected they found your company bankrupt, its property in the hands of receivers, its defaulted interest amounting to many millions of dollars, its floating debt more than $10,000,000, its repairs, renewals and improvements not up to date, and its business badly demoralized. In addition to this the reorganization committee had long been considering the problem of reorganization, and had already announced and withdrawn one plan. By the time your directors had acquired a full knowledge of the con glow of white light midway between the ditions and requirements of your company the floor and the ceiling of his room, and had original reorganization committees, desiring perfect unity of action, had arranged for a committee, known as the joint executive reorgan ization committee, and this committee had taken up the task of making a plan where the first committees had left it off. A plan has finally been formulated and announced.

During the time through which the joint executive reorganization committee has devoted itself to forming this plan your directors have given unceasing attention to it, and have left nothing undone to insure on the part of the committee a knowledge and consideration of all possible and pertinent facts and opinions relating to a proper recognition of the share-holders. In every feasible way the views of your directors and individual shareholders and their friends have been brought to the attention of the committee. What has been comnunicated to it has also been communicated, so far as was proper, to many independent parties of great financial strength, whose interest in the property has been repeatedly and earnestly appealed to or solicited. Rampage of the Delaware and Susquehanna Rivers.

HIGHEST IN THIRTY YEARS.

In One New Jersey City Residents Leave Their Homes and Flee for Safety.

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., April 10 .- Not since the freshet of 1862 has the Delaware River been so high as it was to-day. All the houses on the river front are flooded and families are moving their furniture in boats. The railroad bridge at Martin's Creek is under water and nothing can save it from going down, but heavily loaded cars were run on it during the night.

Should this bridge give way all the bridges from Easton to Trenton will probably go down. Many factories have been flooded and the aggregate loss will be great. Much excitement prevails and the banks are lined with people.

BELVIDERE, N. J., April 10 .- Much damage has been done by the freshet in the Delaware River here. The plant of the Belvidere Water Company has been considerably damaged. Dwellings on Water street were so flooded that the inmates had to be taken away in boats.

The large icehouse of Boardman Brothers was swept away with thousands of tons of ice. Farmers have sustained great losses along the river. The waters are receding to-night. FLEMINGTON, N. J., April 10.—At this point the river is higher than it has been for thirty years. The residents of Stockton fear the canal locks will break above the city and flood them. The situation at Washington, N. J., is almost alarming. WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 1.—The Susquehanna River was eighteen feet above low-water mark at 8 o'clock to-night. The low lands on the west side of the river between Pittston and Buttonwood are flooded. Many of the truck farmers had to remove their livestock to higher grounds in a hurry. The flood was unlooked for. If the river continues to rise it is feared that much damage will be done. Cuts of the Rock Island to Be Met by All the Competing Lines.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 10 .- All the Western lines will on April 23 run home-seekers' excursions from all points in their territory east of the Missouri River to points in the West and Southwest. This action was taken because of the home-seekers' excursions recently announced by the Texas lines and others in Southwest territory. The excursions will be run at one fare plus $2 for the round trip, and the return portion of the ticket will be good for twenty days after the date of sale.

After the lines had disposed of the excursion business the matter of reduced rates made by the Rock Island, Burlington and Union Pacific because of the excursion to Eastern Colorado points run by the Atchison road came up for informal discussion. The notices of reduced rates made by the Rock Island, Burlington and Union Pacific were read and confirmed, but the Atchison stated that it was not disposed to take any action until it was assured of the relations of the Rock Island to the association agreement, as that line had given notice that it was determined to protect its interests if the association agreement was not sufficiently strong to protect its mem-

The Rock Island declared that it had no intention of withdrawing from the agreement and never had such intention. It had simply made an amicable declaration of its principles. No action was taken at the meeting, but it is probable that the whole thing will result in a revision of the agreement. As the matter stands at present, the agreement depends on good faith only, and any line has the privilege of doing just as it chooses. Several of the lines are beginning to feel that the freeand-easy plan is not productive of the best results and that an agreement with strict lines should be formulated. This will be probably done within a short time.

Perry. NEW YORK, N. Y., April 10 .- A telephone message from the Mattawan Insane Asylum to the Associated Press states that Train-robber Perry with four others overpowered a watchman at 11 o'clock last night and succeeded in making their escape from the premises.

Perry was the ringleader of the plot which resulted in freeing at least four and probably several other persons. They overpowered, bound and gagged a night watchman, and then made their way through the chapel of the insane asylum. From the chapel they made their way to one of the attics of the building. From there they easily made their escape.

Balfour said that it was wrong that a man so absolutely unknown in a parliamentary capacity as Mr. Gulley should be nominated. Sir William Vernon Harcourt replied warmly, and Balfour again arose. He was received with loud cries of "Spoken, spoken," from the McCarthy-ites, led by Thomas Healy.

This continued for several minutes, while Balfour stood unmoved at a table. Amid great excitement the members vainly endeavored to induce Healy to desist. I will venture the assertion that a large number of the employes of his road favor a full restoration of silver by this country alone. Probably the directors and large stockholders do not. I have taken some pains to talk with cardrivers and conductors and laboring men in New York City during the past six weeks, also with a very considerable number of business men, and know there is a most decided free-silver senti-

He Speaks of the Call for Free Silver in No Measured Terms.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 10.-From present indications, United States Senator John M. Palmer proposes to fight the so-called free-silver Democrats of Illinois to a finish. The venerable Senator this evening made such a declaration.

"I had no notice, formal or otherwise, of the meeting of the State committee, nor do I understand that the Democracy of the State was better informed than I was. When the committee assembled, I am told, a call for a convention to meet in June was produced, of which Mr. Hinrichsen was the author. On this call the Democracy of the State was told by the committee that the only question before the country is that of the currency. There are other statements in the call to which I only revert for a moment. One of them is that the Federal election laws are repealed, never to be reenacted, when there are good reasons for believing that upon a return of the Repub lican party to power they will enact laws still more vigorous in character.

"It is further declared in the call that no general tariff legislation will be attempted for many years, while it is known that upon a return of the Republican party to power they will attempt to apply and extend the doctrine of protection to the foreign commerce of the United States. Protection, with all of its socialistic features, is republicanism. LO: DON, Eng., April 10.—The Earl of Kimberly probably will lay before the House of Commons an elaborate reply to Senator Morgan's speech in the United States Senate on the Bering Sea question. The reply was prepared by Sir Julian Pauncefote, and an analysis of many of Morgan's statements shows them, it is stated, to be erroneous in fact in many particulars and unjust in conform of a report from Sir Julian as to the status of the negotiations for paying the

That was the reason for the selection of Memphis as the meetingplace this year, instead of Cincinnati, where all the previous meetings of the congress have been held.

The committee appointed to inquire into the ownership of the horse Simmons, which was matched for a race with Dr. Rice at the St. Louis Fair-grounds racetrack in the spring, made its report. Its finding was that an interest in the horse was held by men not in favor with the congress. The case was reopened at the night session, but disposed of.

The report of the committee on rules, which was laid aside temporarily last hight, was taken up and disposed of, the congress sitting until nearly 1 o'clock. A number of minor changes that were recomupon favorably by the congress.

The licensing for jockeys was raised from $3 to $5, and the rules were amended so as to prohibit the jockeys owning horses from riding the horse of any other owner. The rules as to selling races was the subject of a protracted discussion, this being one of the principal points of disagreement among the rules committee.

THE MAY REGATTA.

The Aquatic Event in Which the Are Deeply Interested.

The rowing clubs of the Amateur Row ing Association of this coast are now in strict training for the May regatta, which gives promise of being the most interesting feature in the way of aquatic sport that has been introduced on the waters of this bay in many years. The grand and manly sport of rowing has been neglected for a long time on this coast, but now that the young element has infused new life and spirit into the pastime it is safe to predict that aquatic sports will take their place alongside other pastimes which have recently sprung into opularity. The South End Rowing Club and the The South End Rowing Club and the Olympic Rowing Club have taken upon their shoulders the task of popularizing aquatic sports, and it goes without saying that when two such strong organizations will take this rather difficult matter in hand the future of boating pastimes may be adjudged bright, indeed.

A Poem and Address Eulogistic of the Scientist's Life and Work.

The one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the birth of Samuel Hahnemann, the scientist and father of homeopathy, was celebrated at the Hahnemann Hospital College yesterday. The lecture-hall at the college was taste-students. The dean, Dr. Currier, presented as poet of the day, Dr. French, who pre-faced his original poem, "Hahnemann," with a beautiful little gem. Following are stanzas from the doctor's poem:

In temples new he walked serene,
Where foot of mortal ne'er had trod,
And from unfathomed mystery
He wrought the fruitage of a god.

Out of the tomb of rayless night, Where groping love for ages wept, A star of primal magnitude Athwart life's opening sky he swept. Oh, crime of deep ingratitude, That gift so rare we cheaply hold; And truth inscribed in human blood We sacrifice to greed of gold.

The poem was followed by the introduc-tion of Dr. William Boericke, who delivered an address upon the life, teachings and benificent works of Hahnemann. In speaking of him he said:

speaking of him he said:

This great medical reformer was born to lead—a giant far removed from the pygmies of the century. In commemorating this anniversary we 'leave for the time being the common-place level of our professional life and gain strength and inspiration for the work that has devolved upon us as his disciples—the work of continuing the development of the homeopathic healing art.

LIKE PRIMITIVE MAN. Nativės of New Guinea Low in Civiliza-

Sir William McGregor, K.C.M.G., to whom England and the English-speaking world is indebted for nearly all of the recent knowledge of British New Guinea, is now visiting England preparatory to start-ing on another tour of exploration—"inspection" he prefers to call it. The Illus-trated London News has interviewed him about his plans and his past experiences. A general line of custom runs through the A general line of custom runs through the people, but that line is subject to all manner of variations. Polygamy is common and is based on the theory that the more wives a man has the more comfortable he will be. The description of the marriage customs in one division of the territory would seem to in-dicate that the "advanced woman" is not necessarily a product of the highest civilization. In that part the Papuan woman takes the initiative, sending for the man ot her choice, who comes and takes her away. Her relatives organize a demonstration, and demand in return a sister of the bride groom for a wife to a youth of their family. Thus it is a case of fair exchange, but it is surely barter when, if there is no available sister, a payment in currency—shark's teeth, say—is taken as substitute.

A young lady who had never seen him and who neither had nor was she likely to have any opportunity to proffer her request uniess she made such opportunity resolved to secure his autograph. It happened one delightful autumn day, when he was on his way to the mountains. The laden train drew up at a junction. As Mr. Whittier alighted from his car and, Mr. Whittier alighted from his car and, with the alertness of movement that almost to the very last distinguished him, made his way to his exchange, a young lady forced her way through the crowd.

The dark eyes flashed with a keen amusement and passed swiftly from the puffing train—his train, on which in another moment the bell would ring and from which the conductor was already crying "All aboard!"—to the eager and entreating face of the speaker. He appreciated the situation, and he liked her pluck. He was willing enough to write his name. But where was the pen? He flashed his glance about the station, that glance which took in everything, and then, with the young lady in tow, he hurried up to the telegraph office, seized a pen, dashed off his autograph, walked swiftly to his train and in another minute was whirled onward, laughing and chuckling to himself at the victory he had helped the enterprising applicant to win. plicant to win.

PLACES OF TORTURE.

Hindoo Ideas of the Future of the Wicked.

It is a mystery to enlightened Western nations how the Hindoos ever managed to evolve such a frightfully exaggerated idea of hell-as much of an enigma, perhaps, as our fantastic ideas of the infernal regions will be to the more enlightened races of the coming ages, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. The Hindoos believe in a plurality of hells, 136 in all. This gigantic apartment house, which has been especially prepared for the souls of the damned, is of unthinkable length and breadth, and has walls more than 100 miles in thickness. The intense heat of the interior keeps

The intense heat of the interior keeps these walls at a white heat, and through their many loopholes shines light of such intense brightness that it bursts the eyeballs of all who look in that direction, "even though they be removed from the fires by a distance of 400 leagues."

As each soul is taken from one apartment to the other it is invariably met by Yamaki, the Hindo Pluto, an exaggerated devil 240 miles high, who has hairs on his body which stand out like palm trees. In each of these subdivisions the tortured one is treated to something new and unique in the line of misery. In one he has his toe and finger nails plucked out, and the empty sockets which formerly held his eyes filled with meited wax, and then has horns inserted in the places which in other days were occupied by the organs of vision. In another he is forced to have his teeth pulled and heated to a white heat, and is then compelled to swallow them along with large quantities of pepper-cakes and boiling oif.

The people of two cities agreed that a transportation line connecting them across a sandy and nearly level tract of country would be a common advantage; but they were not rich and it was found impossible to raise the funds for laying the road. But they formed a company and held a meet-ing for the further discussion of ways and means. A director said that metal was not the only thing that rails could be made not the only thing that rails could be made of and he proposed that they should construct the road of wood. Each property-owner along the right of way could contribute his share of wooden rails and the company could see to the rest. The idea was immediately taken up, and it was decided to construct the road. The wood rails are to be large enough to be laid so that they will be half imbedded in the sand without other ballast. They will be held in position by wooden pins two inches in diameter and eighteen inches long, while the ends will be connected by blank couplers placed underneath and pinned down. Although the line will be forty miles long, not a pound of metal will be used in the Although the line will be forty miles long, not a pound of metal will be used in the laying of the track. It is calculated that the vegetable and passenger business between the two cities will soon make the line a paying concern, and, as soon as the road can afford it, steel rails will take the place of the wooden ones, which will be used for ties. A small steam-dummy will soon he in furnish power, and the line will soon be in operation.

WE

Clergymen of All Creeds Approve the "Call's" Course,

BECAUSE IT IS RIGHT.

The Vice That Has Made Many Men Poor and That Keeps

There is no longer room for the lottery advertisement in the columns of the CALL whether it pays or not, whether it is liked or not, the new departure is a permanent fixture. The policy of the paper in regard to the lottery and its advertisement was clearly outlined in the following editorial which was published a few days ago:

The proprietor of the CALL is informed by his subscription agents that a few persons have quit taking the paper because it does not publish the lists of winning numbers in lottery drawings. We would much rather not have any of our readers state this as a reason for not taking the paper, for we should prefer to be-lieve that all of them agree with us in regard-ing lotteries as an evil to every individual who has dealings with them, and to every commu nity which tolerates their operations. We should prefer to think of every member of this community that he has so high a regard for himself and for the moral and financial welfare of the city and State as to be proud of the ex-istence here of a great newspaper which has the courage and the sense of duty to denounce the swindling and corruption which lotteries represent. We should be proud to be able to announce that the CALL's opposition to this shameful evil is one of the very reasons why every good man and woman in the community supports it with subscriptions.

If there are any readers of the CALL who Imagine that it will publish anything of a de-grading, disgusting or otherwise injurious nature they will be disappointed, for this paper is not published in the interest of anything that is low and corrupting. If there are any of our readers who, in spite of our pleadings and warning, still insist on buying lottery tickets, they can easily procure the lists of winning numbers from the agents who sell the tickets, and at the same time can be taking a clean, high-class paper, which gives all the legitimate news without regard to the cost, and which is devoting all of its energies not only to the protection of the community against wrongs, but also to the promotion of those material enterprises which develop the resources of the State and contribute to the happiness, security and prosperity of our people.

The CALL has good reason to believe that the public approves its course. Many of the leading clergymen of the city, men that are revered by many and respected by all, have expressed their views on the sub ject, and without an exception these views Bre indorsements of the paper's policy.

Judge W. W. Morrow of the United States District Court expressed himself as follows on the subject of lottery publications in newspapers:

tions in newspapers:

Think that the course of the Call in that respect is one of the most important departures! have observed in some time. The United States Government has been legislating and endeavoring with the statutes enacted to prevent the distribution through the mails of matter relating to lotteries, and I believe that this course meets with the approval of all the best people. I am often called on to instruct juries called to try poor men for sending lot to step out of the courtroom after trying one of those cases and find the lottery business fully presented to the public in the newspapers. Of course there is nothing in the law to prevent newspapers from publishing this matter provided that they do not violate the laws, what they do is contrary to the well-known and well-defined policy of the Government.

The Rev. W. E. Goodwin of the Callifornia street Methodist Episcopal Church has been but two months in this city, but he has seen the lottery evil here, and knows of its deleterious effects. He said:

I am with the movement in every way, and I am with the movement in every way, and I am with the movement in every way, and I have often wondered how it was that the lottery advertisements and the publication of the winning numbers has not been but two months in this city, but he has seen the lottery evil here, and knows of its deleterious effects. He said:

I am with the movement in every way, and I am with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in every way, and I are with the movement in e

I believe that it is just as reprehensible for the newspapers to publish the lottery advertisements as it is for the dealers to make use of the mails to circulate such matter. The newspapers are supposed to be the natural safe grards of commercial integrity. Evasion and indirection are just as bad morally as direct violation of laws, because the moral delinquency is in the intention. We ministers do not believe in lotteries at all, and I am sure that that is the position of most of the public.

Emanu-El said:

I am opposed to lotteries, for I do not believe it is the proper way for people to make money. It is gambling, and there can be no two opinions on the subject of gambling. I am opposed to lotteries, for I do not believe it is the proper way for I do not believe it is the post of the lottery agambling, and there can be no two opinions on the subject of gambling. The newspapers have a great power for good or evil by their example, and in this case do more harm than could be done the ticket-sellers and others interested by all the ticket-seller in the lottery business.

Rev. George E. Walk, rector of Trinity ment against lotteries:

My opinion on the subject of a newspaper refusing to print any matter relating to lot-teries can be stated in a very few words. It is that there should not be any such publication. I am pleased to know that the CALL has made I am pleased to know that the Call has made a movement in that direction, and hope that all the papers will do likewise. There is a great deal of harm done by the printing of such matter, for it demoralizes the people of the country. Charles M. Shortridge is to be commended for the stand he has taken in this matter, and he will maintain it. No good follows the publicity given to lotteries or any other kind of gambling, and everything that can be ought to be done to discourage such publicity.

Episcopal Church expressed himself in few words when asked about the movement against lotteries. He said:

The CALL is to be congratulated on taking The CALL is to be congratulated on taking the initiative in suppressing lottery advertisements, and every right-thinking person will commend it for so doing. There is too much gambling going on in this community, and too much lottery. Everything that can be done to stop such wrong should be done, and the refusal to printadvertisements of this class is one way to stop it. In our church I have frequently preached against this evil, and have mown the young men the bad influence of having anything to do with lotteries.

The Rev. M. J. Furgeson of the Christian Church is strongly opposed to lotteries of all kinds. On this subject he said:

I am gratified to note that the CALL has tarted a movement against the lottery, which consider the most pernicious form of gambling. It is demoralizing, and inflicts a great hardship on many people, who could use the money spent in that way for better purioses. It has been a matter of astonishment to me that people who declare that they abhor poses. It has been a matter of asignificant to me that people who declare that they abnor gambling with cards and the like can deal in lotteries. I am at a loss to understand how they can reconcile their actions with their extensions.

The Rev. J. A. Schroeder of St. Johannes German Evangelical Lutheran Church essed opinions.
I have noticed that the attention of the minis-said:

ters has been called to this matter, and I be-lieve it is right. I am opposed to lotteries in every shape—out of and in the church. I do not believe that such means should be resorted order to raise funds for the church, for that purpose should be raised by butions. If every one who attends church contributions. If every one who attends church donated in proportion to his means, churches would not resort to raffles and schemes of that kind to raise funds. I have preached against lotteries, and will say that newspapers should not print anything in regard to them. I am in full sympathy with the CALL in its movement against this kind of gambling.

The Rev. W. H. Moreland, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, in speaking of the Call's movement in regard to lotteries, said:

I rejoice that the Call has decided not to publish anything that will advance the interests of lotteries. The refusal to publish direction. It is to be hoped that the good example set will be followed by other newspapers. Not long since I preached on the subject of lotteries and deplored the fact that some newspapers on one page printed a high moral editorial calling upon the people to respect and obey the laws and in the same issue, even on the same page, printed the results of a lottery drawing in contravention of law. These papers which thus violate the law set a bad example, and when people who see what they do follow the example set and rise in violation of law these same papers are the first to call upon the militia to shoot down the men who have risen. I should like to see these papers practice what they preach. A prominent member of my congregation called my attention to the fact that the Call had made the announcement that it had done with lotteries and I rejoiced that there was one paper that had taken a step in the right direction, said:

The Rev. Herrmann Cordes, pastor of the Emanuel Church of the Evangelical Association, said:

The resolution adopted by the Methodists indersing the Call for its stand on the lottery movement to suppress it is to be commended.

Rev. Robert Mackenzie of the First Pres-Rev. Robert Mackenzie of the First Presbyterian Church, in reply to a question,

The Press Cannot Urge the People to Obey Laws That It Violates.

This matter of suppressing information about lotterles is one of great importance. The Call is right in the stand it has taken, and, in my opinion, every paper ought to follow its example. What are these lists of results that are given? Only a showing that a few have won something; but never a word is said of the many who do not win anything. I believe that it is right that everything should be done to put down schemes of this character, as they against good morals, against law, and demoralize communities in which they exist.

People to Obey Laws That

It Violates.

Rev. John Hemphill, pastor of Calvary

Church, said:

The Call is to be commended for its course in refusing to publish lottery advertisements. I am opposed to lottery, in fact, to all kinds of gambling, and am ready to do all I can, by voice or pen, to assist in suppressing the evil. Newspapers ought not to publish lottery lists, for they do more harm than many people have any idea of. You can say for me that I am opposed to exerything in the shape of lottery, no matter for what purpose. Why, when the up I preached against it, because it was wrong. I verily believe that the misfortune of the library is the outcome of the manner in which it obtained its money. If people find difficulty in obtaining the results of lottery drawings they will not be so ready to invest in schemes that impoverish the many for the benefit of the few. I am against lotteries first and last, for the reason that they take money from people who least can afford to spend their money that way. It is not a legitimate way of securing money. Heart and soul I am in favor of any movement that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling, and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop this gambling and I am sure that will stop

Association, said:

The resolution adopted by the Methodists indorsing the CALL for its stand on the lottery question meets my views, and I indorse that action. I am glad to see that the matter of lotteries is being agitated and that an effort is being made to have them stopped, if possible. I have on many occasions preached against the evil of dealing in lottery schemes, and have addressed myself particularly to the younger members of the congregation. There are many who seem to think that there is no harm in dealing in lotteries, but there is a great deal of harm in such dealing. Every means, legitimate of course, should be used to stop that kind of business. My opposition to this style of thing extends to all kinds of gambling, and I am opposed to any kind of scheme where property is disposed of by chance, even in church fairs or charitable entertainments.

I do not know of anything that does more harm in this community than lotteries. It is an alluring scheme that is drawing away from the State a great deal of money that ought to remain here, and that money comes from a class that cannot afford to lose one, two or three dollars a month. The advertising of lottery schemes is wrong, and I am glad to know that the Call has had the courage to refuse such advertisements. I am strongly opposed to all kinds of lotteries because they in my opinion are against good morals, against the good of the community and against religion. I hope that the movement to put a stop to the publication of lottery advertisements will be productive of good results. We do not countenance lotteries in our church and I believe that every member of our congregation is opposed to them.

Rev. J. G. Mangold, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, said:

Thave not given the subject of lotteries in this city much thought, but I know from what I have seen elsewhere that it is certainly a great evil. It is not an honest and straightforward business, and as such it should not be allowed to exist. I have known of people who spent all they had on lottery tickets in the hope of winning a few dollars, and even if they did win it all went back again. The CALL is doing the proper thing in opposing these lottery games, and I fully indorse its policy.

Per John A Emery, pastor of St.

Rev. John A. Emery, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, had an excellent opportunity to study the latter evil during his stay in Oakland recently. He said:

his stay in Oakland recently. He said:

There can be no two opinions about the question at all. The lottery evil is one that should be suppressed as soon as possible. I have seen it in the parish in Oakland, where often the poorer people would spend their last cent in buying tickets, until it would leave them nearly destitute. This idea of trying to make money out of a very small investment, whether successful or not, certainly does not promote thrift or legitimate trade. I can indorse the policy of the Call most heartily, for the evil is one that needs attention.

Rev. W. W. Bolton rector of the Church.

Rev. W. W. Bolton, rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, said: Lotteries are evil just as gambling is an evil, and the same fascination seems to be in both. The clergy should be against it as they are against betting. The idea of getting something for nothing is a demoralizing one, in fact, it is nothing less than stealing, for it is a law of trade that there must be value given as well as received. I am with the Call heart and soul, for I think its position is one in the interests of public purity and morality. I thoroughly indorse its policy.

The Rey, Father P. R. Lynch of St.

The Rev. Father P. R. Lynch of St. James Church, in giving his views on the lottery question, said:

The whole system of lotteries is wrong. It is an injury to the community and takes out of the State a large amount of money that ought to be expended in legitimate channels. It is the poor people who are the sufferers by these schemes, for the rich have other ways of acquiring money. Once in a while we hear that done what it already has done in the matter, and that it will be successful. I also hope that when it gets through with this it will turn its attention to other wrongs that need to be corrected.

THE SERVICES ON SUNDAY.

Organization of the Mission to Advance the Cause of Temperance.

The installation of Rev. F. A. Doane as pastor of Mizpah Presbyterian Church at 3 o'clock P. M. on Sunday next marks an important chapter in the history of the mis sion. It was formerly the Howard Band of Hope, and was organized on January 11, 1884. Its object was to advance the cause of Christian temperance among young people, by having them sign a pledge against the use of intoxicating liquors, tobacco and profanity.

The following were charter members:
Mrs. W. Churchill, Mrs. John McKee (nee Boole), G. D. B. Stewart, Herbert Folger, BOOLE, G. D. B. Stewart, Herbert Folger, William Rieger, Wales L. Palmer, Thomas M. Gardiner and Fred A, Doane, directors; also Miss Fannie Perkins, Miss Lina Fraser, Miss Annie Eatwell, Miss Gracie Grant, Miss Annie Perkins, Miss Margaret Coutts, Miss Edith Grant, Miss Ada Smith, Miss Lauretta Wright, Miss Alice Goodprint lottery drawings. From this beginning the band rapidly grew in membership, and the desire to extend the work became so strong that the Christian Band of Hope Union was organized in August of the same year, under the auspices of which it was purposed to organize Bands of Hope upon strictly Christian principles. principles.

Within a year two bands were started in Oakland, and another in this city. Several interesting conventions were held, which were promoters of great good.

The Sabbath-school was organized in November, 1887, with four teachers and fifteen scholars. The school flourished, and as the months rolled by the mission grew in membership and strength until 1893, when the Mizpah Presbyterian Church was organized. A beautiful chapel was built on Harrison street, near Fifth, and was opened last year.

Gaming of all kinds, but particularly lot-teries, I have always fought against, both in my private life and in the pulpit. I have preached against it in my church, and in my own case I against it in my church, and in my own case I withdrew my patronage from a storekeeper because I found he sold lottery tickets. In the South its effects are terrible. The negroes and the ignorant whites put every cent they have in the world into lottery tickets, and it keeps many poor who might otherwise be able to live at least decently. The Call's stand in the matter is an excellent one and will be indorsed by every good Christian in the country, and cannot fail to do great good in the cause of public morality.

Rev, Dr. C. O. Brown, pastor of the First Congregational Church, has had personal experience with the lottery-ticket sellers.

I am glad that some paper is willing to take the matter of lottery gaming up, and I can say I most emphatically indorse the attitude of the CALL against it, for the suppression of this traffic is one of the reforms badly needed in this city. I have had men and women come right here to the door offering to sell tickets, and they seem to do it openly and without fear of the consequences. I am in favor of the of the consequences. I am in favor of the movement, and the Call's policy I think a most commendable one. It is the pioneer in the crusade and should be supported.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Hirst, pastor of the Simpson Memorial Church, was emphatic in his denunciation of the evil, and in his indorsement of the CALL's efforts to stamp it out. He said:

The stand the CALL has taken is an excellent one. It is the right move in the right direction and in the right kind of reform. I am heartily in accord with what is being done, and I beand in the right kind of reiorin. I am hearthly in accord with what is being done, and I believe it is going at the matter in the right way. There are not many of the effects of the traffic apparent among my people, but it is an evil which is hard to locate. I have seen its effects elsewhere, however. I have seen it impoverish families in the East, where the people have been led on to buy with promises of fabulous returns on the money they invest, until it gets to be a passion with them. It is cambling shment to be a passion with them. It is gambling, y abhor deal in taken to prevent its spread and to drive it out. The Rev. J. A. Schroeder of St. Johannes articles that have appeared in The CALL on the subject of lotteries, and I heartily approve of its efforts to discourage such schemes. I am opposed now and always have been to any scheme by which a person may get something by chance. I do not believe in any kind of dealing in which both parties to a transaction have not an equal opportunity. I have often preached against the evil of gambling by lottery, and on one occasion I preached a whole sermon on that subject. I have been asked if lottery is any worse than other methods that are looked upon as legitimate. I have answered that lottery and any kind of gambling are hurtful to the community. I am against every scheme to obtain property by chance—even in church or elsewhere. In our church we have fairs and bazers, but no kind of lottery is persead himself as follows on the subject of lotteries: scheme to obtain property by chance—even in a church or elsewhere. In our church we have fairs and bazars, but no kind of lottery is permitted. Why as far back as 1854, a gentleman outside of the church with which I was then connected gave a great assistance to it, on one occasion offered to get up a fair in aid of the church. He was allowed to do so, but when he offered to sell pieces of cake in which a ring had been inserted, I told him that such could not be permitted, and I have followed that rule ever since. I am very glad that this is being agitated, and that THE CALL is doing so much in the matter.

The Call is certainly to be praised for the step it has taken in relation to lotteries and for refusing to publish advertisements relating to such. I read with a great deal of satisfaction the editorial addressed to ministers, and am glad that the attention of the ministers has been called to the evil. I, for one, am opposed to everything in the shape of lotteries, whether in the general community or in ecclesiastical circles. In our church we are opposed to lotteries and to all kinds of gambling. I have often preached against them and their baneful influence, and shall continue to do so whenever the opportunity offers. I approve of the resolutions adopted by the Methodist ministers indorsing the Call for refusing to advance lottery schemes.

The Rev. Joseph Worcester, pastor of the Second New Jerusalem Church (Swedenborgian), opposes lotteries and lottery advertisements. He said:

Why, not long since a boy was selling lottery tickets and a policeman was standing not twenty feet away. I do not think that even in Louisiana there is as little sentiment against lotteries as there is here. I suppose that it is a part of that spirit that prevailed in the early days. What has astonished me is the number of women who purchase lottery tickets. It is disgraceful, but it is a fact. There are many who indulge in this kind of gambling because of its being "a clean way" of gambling, and it is because it is clean that it is dangerous. I should like to see our merchants take part in discouraging this class of gambling, but as the ministers have been asked to assist I hope that what they may do or say will have its effect. I am very much opposed to every class of gambling and lotteries, and for that reason do not care to take the initiative in the matter so long as the object sought—the suppression of lottery advertising—is attained. I am glad that the CALL has imbling. Dealing in lotteries is most de-oralizing, and it is a disgrace to our age that

As you are no doubt aware, the Methodist ministers adopted resolutions indorsing the CALL for its efforts to suppress lotteries. What was done by the ministers as a body I indorse individually. I am very glad that the paper has taken the stand it has, and every good citizen should help in the good work. Not only should the publication of any matter in reference to lottery schemes be discountenanced, but lotteries themselves should be suppressed, for they are productive of a great deal of misery in the community. The CALL has taken a step in the right direction, and I am very much pleased that it has done so. In our church every member of our congregation, I firmly believe, is against lotteries, not only in the general sense, but against lotteries in every shape. I hope that the movement to put a stop to this form of gambling will be successful. The Rev. Eli McClish of Grace Methodist

Rev. Leslie W. Sprague of the Second Unitarian Church said:

Allow me to thank the Call for the stand taken against this widespread and insidious form of gambling. I use the word "gambling" advisedly, although many who have lottery tickets in their pockets this morning would result being classed with gamblers. What is gambling? It has been well defined as "an attempt to gain by chance or hazard or supposed intornation the money or property of others without giving any fair equivalent, and the money or property of others without giving any fair equivalent, in sought." In short, to gamble is to try to get something for nothing—to get rich by a lottery ticket.

is something for nothing—to get rich by a lottery ticket.

Every ranch, every gold watch, every crazy quilt, every ring cake, costs something in toil and skill and time, and no person can honorably take either of these from the owner except as a gift or for an equivalent consideration.

The man who secures a ranch for his $1 ticket in a State lottery and the youth who secures a gold ring in a piece of cake for his 10-cent ticket in a church lottery are both in possession of property for which they have given no adequate consideration. And there is no sound principle of morals or of trade that would justify them in holding this property or that would justify them in holding this property or that would justify the gold in the state or the church in keeping the money received for the tickets that drew blanks. All attempts to get without giving, to eat without working, are vicious. They are unjust to society that digs and coins the gold and by toil working, are vicious.

WANT A HIGHER RATE.

Railroad Men Think Coal Oil Is Shipped Altogether Too Cheap in This State.

The Board of State Railroad Commissioners heard arguments yesterday in favor of advancing the rate on petroleum and its products. Vice-President Stubbs of the Southern Pacific, R. X. Ryan, general freight and passenger agent of the present rate on coal oil is too low to leave any profit for their companies.

They wanted an increase in rate, and to support their appeal they made a very plausible showing. Formerly coal oil is less than carload lots must proceed along the lines which will satisfy the child; therefore, that education is the best thing for him.

Children have two sorts of instincts—inherited and acquired. When some instinct of a child is mischievous the energy displayed during its exercise should be drafted on to some good, inherited instinct. It is a wise thing to cultivate the child's natural gregariousness. Make him social as well as individual. Break down the distinction between the two sexes, and make them help each other as well as furnish discipline for their own control.

This is the right sort of socialism in which individuality does not lead to individualism, and properly trained children are socialists of the highest order. Sanity is equipoise.

Children should be educated through the esthetical instincts, and, as nature is first in order, education should begin with nature and proceed from that to science. The earth is a harmony, sometimes a symphony, and what more beautiful to the youthful mind than the contemplation of nature's beauties.

Estheticism must be reached through the ideal instincts. Even the adult can acquire scientific knowledge best through a faithful study of nature.

As the instinct of religion or the conception of duty is weak in the child, and is a late development, better results are obtained through example than by forcing rigid rules on children. Superconscientiousness or deceit are sure to follow the latter course, and will prevent a child from racking his own living area.

THE LAW OF WILLS.

Among the enactments of the last Legislature there is one law at least which the Joaquin rivers to such an extent as to legal and moral sense of the people of California most heartily approves. It is the law which so amends the Civil Code as to The ground is taken that this material will provide for the formal recordation of marriage contracts as a prerequisite to their validity. It is high time in the history of California that such a statute should be enacted and enforced, and had it been so twenty years ago, much of the disgraceful and disgusting litigation of that period | interests of the people whose property is to would not have occurred.

The principle which underlies the public satisfaction with this enactment is, that instruments which are intended to affect the domestic relation and the rights of property arising therefrom should be susceptible of exact and official proof as to cution without formality and their preser-Petaluma girls, which the papers have vation in privacy and secrecy is to allow endless opportunities for fraud, to the commission of which the temptation is pecu-

> The same common-sense which has applauded the statute requiring the recordation of marriage contracts should have suggested to the last Legislature another law touching a kindred subject. The law of wills in this State is in as much or more need of amendment as was the law of marriage contracts. By its present terms an apparent solemnity is cast about the execution of a will which the testator does not himself fully write or will or sign. The required formalities of the present statute avail but little, however, in view of the fact that any paper, no matter how informal, purporting to be in the handwriting of the testator is entitled to admission to probate as the dead man's will. The wills has been the establishment as genuine of all sorts of nondescript documents. Wills scrawled upon walls, upon envelopes, upon wrapping-paper and the like with varying sorts of perishable pigments have demanded recognition from courts of law after the hand which uncertain oral testimony asserts to have written them is dead. If it is sound public policy to require the to our gold product. official acknowledgment and recordation of deeds and mortgages and marriage contracts why not also require an equally formal authentication of wills and that,

We may well learn wisdom in this matter from the laws of older States and social systems than our own. In Germany and France the laws have long required the authentication of the will during the lifetime of him who is claimed to have written it. We might easily adopt a similar policy and enforce it without any violation of makers of wills. All that would be necessary by way of amendment of our present law would be a requirement that the teshis will for filing. The paper says also that the Caminetti bill is "simply an ingenious" device for the resumption of hydraulic mining, utterly regardless of the rights and be destroyed by it.

The real fact is that no hydraulic mine can be legally operated in the drainage basin of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers unless it obtains a license from the California Debris Commission, and the law under which they were appointed extheir validity, and that to permit their exe- pressly stipulates that the tailings from such mines' must be impounded. No permission to mine can take effect until the prescribed restraining works or settling basins are safe to use; and no license is issued until the commission is satisfied the mine can do no harm with its debris. The commission is composed of United States engineers, who are very conservative, and who are skilled in the preservation of navigable streams. They will not | Enterprise. issue a license to mine where the streams will be endangered.

If the miners were in fact, as is implied. to dump their debris into the rivers, a stop would be put to their operations at once, as would be proper. No one wants to see the streams injured or individuals suffer loss from mining debris; nor does it seem at all probable that this can occur under the present law and Debris Commission. When it is found that the debris-impounding works enforced by the commission, and result of this loose condition of the law of paid for by the miners, are ineffective, it will be time to consider some other method. But thus far they have been found to answer the purpose very well. though the miners are unable to work to their former capacity when using them. At the same time, they prevent damage to streams or individuals, while permitting the miner to pursue his vocation and add

If it is ever found that damage is being done the law will doubtless be changed, but there is little fear of that as long as the Government engineers have control of the mining operations as well as the rivers, as at present. They have the power to close down any mine at any time when they see fit, and there is no appeal from their decision. The whole question of hydraulic mining in the section referred to is in their hands, with absolute authority conferred by the Congress of the United States, and they will permit no injury to be done.

A WARNING FROM WHEELING.

In 1891 a leading citizen of Wheeling, West Virginia, bought an old concert hall, the walls of which had been condemned as dangerous, and in spite of a popular proopened a store in it. This building, as of the official copy. Let all wills other patches announcing the catastrophe naively add that "owing to the lack of adequate laws' the leading citizen was permitted to commit this crime.

This tragedy discloses an exceedingly common fault in the government of Ameridouble benefit would be done in that our can cities. The citizens of Wheeling saw this outrage being committed, and not one of them, not even the Mayor, had the civic spirit sufficiently developed to apply the simple remedy of a court injunction, and it is not supposable that this act caused other assistance to our contemporaries, by in the law is a crying need of our State the passage of an ordinance prohibiting others from committing similar outrages. The science of architecture is so well understood in these days that there is no difficulty in devising reasonable safeguards against fires and structural weakness, but in the absence of laws defining modes of construction and in the presence of a lax administration of such laws as do exist, the mean leading citizen, who cares more for money than for the lives, safety and health of the people, finds hardly any check upon the propensity to murder which his rapacity creates. San Francisco has a great number of enormous wooden tinder-boxes into which people are packed by the thousands, but, terrible as they are, they are not a whit worse than other disgraceful accompaniments of a lax public sentiment. A city in all its public details is an expression of the pride and intelligence of its inhabitants. Its rich men would not be permitted to erect dangerous or unhealthful structures if the masses were not willing that they should. The people of Wheeling, in permitting this disaster, cannot escape a share of moral responsibility with the owner of the house. If any of the dangerous structures of San Francisco should burn, the blood of its victims will rest upon the head of every resident.

Likewise, every citizen of San Francisco must bear the disgrace and material loss which the presence of death traps, fire holes, inadequate sewers and wretched pavements imposes. It is not sufficient to say that the City is young and that the correction of these evils will come with man was being lynched, and then forced us to time, for observation is as valuable as experience. A stranger will properly judge the character and intelligence of a city by its externals, and if he comes hither from a city where the externals are more inviting, he will be justified in deciding against rier that the superb natural attractions of the City can with difficulty overcome. When we compare the perfectly smooth and noiseless streets of Los Angeles with the rude, primitive and exasperating pavements of San Francisco, we need go no any amount of shooting, red light and pistolfurther in our quest for the cause of the wonderful prosperity of that charming city of the south.

Theatrical life does not bristle with thrilling ncidents as a rule, but I remember once have ing an experience that few actors ever met with. It was when I was with the first Englishspeaking company that ever crossed the Mexican frontier. On our way we played through

Texas.

Just before our arrival at the town of Dennison, a horrible murder had been committed. I forget the details, but the town was much stirred up over the affair, and patrols were out for miles around scouring the country to find the murderer. The thing did not trouble us, and our band, in which I played first cornet, set out to promenade the streets as usual.

On our way back to the hotel we were met by a big mob, heading toward one of the suburbs, and the leaders commanded us to turn back and lead the procession. It seems the murderer had been caught and the mob was on its way to lynch him. There was no joking about the way the leaders said, "Go ahead and play a lively tune." So having no choice left to us we went back and played a succession of popular airs. They made us give them music while the head the procession with "Marching Through Georgia.' A few days after crossing the Mexican fron tier we had a different sort of lynching experience, in which, strange to say, we ourselves played the part of the mob. Going to Laredo we made the acquaintance of a sheriff who had investment and a residence here. The navement of Market street alone is a bartold us, was an escaped murderer who had not vet been tried.

The Sheriff remarked that our destination were not far apart, for the theater at Laredo is only a few feet from the jail. The night of our arrival we played "The French Spy," a regular blood-and-thunder melodrama, with firing. The next morning some of us strolled down to visit the Sheriff and casually asked after his prisoner. "He nearly died of fright," was the answer. "When he heard the shout ing and the firing outside, no one could persuade him that a mob had not come together to lynch him." And after what we had seen at Dennison we did not laugh at the man's unnecessary terror, as we might otherwise have done.

The famous critic, Ed. Hanslick, who is not lenient toward new works, does not fear to affirm that since Mozart no composer has appeared with more genius than Humperdinck. The Viennese papers are telling some pretty stories apropos of "Hansel and Gretel." One is that a little girl, 10 years old, wrote to the Empress that she was very unhappy because she heard every one talking of the fairy opera, and she could never see the beautiful work because her bedtime came before the hour of going to the theater. The Empress, touched by the little letter, instructed the manager of the theater to reply to the baby petitioner that "Hansel and Gretel" should be given once as a matinee on her account. The Emperor, wishing to have his share in the affair, decided to make the representation a children's fete, and had candy and toys distributed to all the little visitors. At Mullhouse "Hansel and Gretel" was also the Troyens." occasion of a fete, when a splendid Christmas tree was donated to the town's children, and when the opera was being played at Mayence an amusing scene took place. Among the flowers that enthusiastic admirers heaped upon the prima donna was discovered a beautiful basket containing a tiny curly dog. The play was by common consent interrupted while the little creature was christened "Hensel."

Miss Zelie de Lussen, the New York prima donna, who is so popular with her Britannic Majesty that she is known as "The Queen's Own," has given her opinions upon we composers in the current number of Music. The subject is one that has excited considerable attention lately on account of Miss Holmes' new lyric drama, "The Black Mountain," and Miss de Lussen, who has had opportunities of meeting many of the prominent women composers, speaks her mind very frankly about them:

"I do not think a woman is strong-minded enough to become a composer," she says. "As a rule a woman composer is much more masculine than any other kind of woman. It may also be that a woman cannot well devote the time she should, and that a man would. In her singing capacity a prima donna works as hard as a man, but if it came down to composing-counterpoint, narmony and all that sort of thing, I don't think so. You will find, staying at the Grand. too, that as a rule a composer has begun his career as a child of 5 or 6 years old and a cago, is at the Palace. woman has not. Look at that Hoffman boy for instance. He began at 4 years of age. It is stopping at the Occidental. thing about harmony or counterpoint. Take those choirboys in England. Where do you find girls 5 or 6 years old singing in choirs? The reason is that a woman does not begin early enough. I do not think that she doesn't want to, but I don't think she could." In discussing whether women are po

Back in the last century, when Gluck's 'Alceste" was produced at the Opera of Paris, and was at first coldly received, the great com-poser exclaimed: "'Alceste' will not only please now in its novelty. It knows no time, and I affirm that it will please equally in two hundred years, if the French language remains the same. The reason is that I have built it on a foundation of nature, and that is never swayed

How strangely prophetic these words were The other day the temple scene from Gluck's "Alceste" was revived at the Paris Conserva tory, and seldom had the building resounded with such applause as it aroused. The music of the classical master performed the miracle of thrilling a public surfeited with good music. It was very evident that the simple accents of the noble tragedy had kept their power, and, in spite of the progress accomplished in the technique of musical art, the inspiration of the old master had remained young and vivacious

Corney Grain was not a great musician, but in his musical sketches and satires, for which he was famous as an entertainer in London, he was able to ridicule in a good-natured way all the follies and affectations of the musical amateur as perhaps no other man has succeeded in doing. "The average audience," Grain used to say, "expects a high note at the end of a song. If the song terminates without one they fold their hands and say, 'That is not the end; give us our high note.'" Every abuse of singing and pianoforte playing was delicately held up to ridicule and laughter at some time or other in the course of this gifted entertainer's career, and unconsciously he did much to improve for over thirty years. "Plumas suffered musical taste. His sudden death from la grippe severely on account of the closing down of the has been recognized in England as a national calamity, and high social and church dignita-ries attended his funeral. The well-known drawing-room actor, German Reed, who was for years associated with Corney Grain, died of la grippe one day before his friend. A composer, Adolph Wibelle, to whom a long time ago a brilliant career seemed to be open-ing, has just died in Paris, forgotten and neglected. Twenty years ago Wibelle's opera comique, in four acts, "The Alibi," was played very successfully in Paris, and enjoyed a long favor were "The Fountain of Berny" and "The Benediction of the Neva." The latter work contained some very beautiful and exalted passages. Unfortunately, however, Wibelle had more exalted views with regard to composition than his talents justified him in attempts ing. He gradually slipped out of the public view, and at the time of his death, which took place in his seventieth year, he was entirely forgotten by the musical world.

There are all sorts of rumors about Verdi undertaking a new opera, though the aged composer stoutly denies them all. One story is to fellows who has more money than brains, isn't the effect that Verdi is at work on a one-act opera, the plot of which is founded upon the deeds of his old friend Ismail Pasha, the late Khedive of Egypt. The Pasha was certainly a warm admirer of the Italian maestro, and no only commissioned him to write his Egyptian opera "Aida," but mounted it lavishly when it was produced in Cairo.

The ways in which they may be prepared are infinite.

The bouillibaise, immortalized by Thackeray, is a royal and most pleasing dish. Boiled cod with oyster and mussel sauce is mostly the choice of the native of the British Isles, and soles or turbot au gratin are demanded by those whose tastes have been formed in the French restaurants. It is not extravagant to say that rants. It is not extravagant to say that the much-vaunted Fulton market in New York cannot compare with the California York cannot compare with the California fish-markets in variety and quality of fish. The barracuda is more than an offset to the Eastern bluefish. They boast the lobster and the oyster. The Pacific Coast native is as delicate in flavor, though not the size of the Bluepoint, and the offshore crab can double-discount the fattest lobster that ever steamed in a dish at Delmonico's. In the matter of shripms Calister that ever steamed in a dish at Delimonico's. The Grand Jury held a brief session yes terday, which was brief principally on account of its being smoked out. Though it is getting very warm toward the end of the session, several of the members had a nervous chill, as they expected counter-charges would be presented from the two factions in the Board of Supervisors. Both sides are maintaining positions of masterly inactivity, and no communications came from them.

The chill caused a desire to have the rooms heated. Coals were heaped high in the grate and the fire was started. The

THE WATER RATES.

Some Questions Referred to the City and County Attorney for His Opinion.

The Water Committee of the Board of Supervisors held another of its sittings for the discussion of the water rates and the relation of the laws thereto last evening, but got no further than a discussion. The water company was represented by Messrs. Kellogg and Booker and the full committee

Mr. Taylor held to his plan of raising the rates on the hydrants of the city to the rates on the hydrants of the city to the proportionate relief of the ratepayer and to the fixing of the uniform rate to all consumers as required by the text of the law.

Mr. Kellogg expressed the belief that this law was unconstitutional, but the members of the committee would not go into that question, believing that they must follow the law as they find it.

Two resolutions were passed asking the advice of the City and County Attorney, first as to the right of the committee to levy a tax to meet the water bill, such as would follow the raising of the hydrantrate from $2.50, as now, to $10, and, again, as to their right to fix a uniform rate to the ratepayer, to take the place of the sliding scale which runs from 30 to 13 cents in favor of the large consumers.

It is expected the opinions will be at hand by next meeting night, and that then the committee will determine upon a rate.

POLICE SKETCHES.

Captain William Y. Douglass was born on June 30, 1826, in New York City. He chose a seafaring life, and on August 1, 1849, arrived at this port as second mate of the ship Pacific. Becoming seized with the gold fever, as was usually the case in those days, he went to Mormon Island, on the American River, and took a hand at placer mining. He fell sick and returned to the city. He took command of a vessel on a voyage to the Sandwich Islands and back. He was intrusted with the sale of the vessel, and that ended his seafaring life. On December 18, 1856, he was appointed to the police force. In less than two years afterward, on August 16, 1858, he was promoted to the position of captain, which he has held continuously ever since.

This does not of course mean that anything like the Richter standard was aimed at last night, but any one who heard the Philharmonic amateurs floundering through Mendelssohn's "Italian Symphony," at their recent concert, would have found it hard to believe that in two short months they could be educated up to rendering anything in as finished and spirited a manner as they gave Moszkowsky's suite "From All Nations" last night. The Philharmonic Society has a fondness for symphonies, and the one chosen for performance last night was Haydn's "Le Midi." The orchestra had been weeded, so to speak, for the occasion, brass and wood being reduced to a minimum, which lessened the chances of being palpably out of tune.

It is true that the strings were scarcely able to compete with the technical difficulties of the florid execution that Haydn, like most of the old masters, requires, but the orchestra showed an intelligent appreciation of the delicate beauty of the work and most of the symphony was listened to with real pleasure by the audience. IGNORES ORGANIZED Trade Unionists Say They Asked For and Expected a Workingman.

Council and editor of the Voice of Labor,

I am not at present half so much interested in Mr. Fitzgerald's appointment or his probable course of action as I am in ascertaining upon what authority Governor Budd uses my name as one of the indorsers of Mr. Fitzgerald. When I indorse anybody for anything I wish at least to be personally acquainted with that individual, and I did not know of Mr. Fitzgerald's existence four months ago. At that time he called at my office, claiming to be acting under instructions from the Governor, and asked me to give my opinions as to the work that might and should be done by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. I complied with the request, pointing to the Minnesota, Ohio, Massachusetts and New Jersey labor bureaus as examples. I also urged that the next appointee be a man "fitted by education and training" to carry out the proper functions of the bureau. At that time I did not know and Mr. Fitzgerald did not mention that he was an aspirant for did not mention that he was an aspirant for the president of the Labor Council. That request I positively and absolutely refused to grant. The "private citizen" part was the merest sham, since as a private citizen I had been the Populist candidate for Secretary of State, and my indorsement as such would presumably be detrimental to any "good" Democrat's chance of official favor. I was then asked if I had "any personal or official objections" to Mr. Fitzgeraid, to which I candidly replied that I had not. This was the extent of my acquaintance or connection with Mr. Fitzgeraid.

As to his probable conduct of the office. Learn the prominent among these is the rule which demands that all members of the force on inside duty shall wear uniforms. It has come to be the custom with the men doing desk task or clerical work in the head offices or in the stations to wear citizens' dress while on duty. As a consequence they have, in a measure, formed a class among themselves, and considerable feeling has sprung up, between the control of the office. Learn the prominent would find it a much more difficult matter.

From the talk of a number of Democrats, many of whom did not wish to be quoted at present, an investigation by the Grand Jury may be demanded. The temper of the faction who have fought Rainey and Buckley has been sorely tried, and they feel that a certainty of deliverance is at hand.

Mr. Popper voiced the sentiments of this

In the appointment of Fitzgerald Governor Budd has totally disregarded the voice of labor. The labor men's Union in general. I do not know Mr. Fitzgerald personally, but I do know that his appointment is very unsatisfactory to organized labor. In the first place he is a very young man. Even had he been prominently identified with labor orgaizations his age would make it impossible for him to have attained that degree of experience which a Commissioner of Labor commissioner might do a great deal of opposition. The men form the office of Labor Commissioner might do a great deal of opposition. The men form the watches which go on at midnight have been allowed to wear what dress they pleased. The men say that when attired in plain clothes they have much more oppointment is very unsatisfactory to organized labor. In the first place he is a very young man. Even had he been prominently identified with labor orgaizations his age would make it impossible for him to have attained in plain clothes they have much more oppointment of John Deegan to a place in the Mint ought to put it to rest. Deegan was one of the eighteen men chosen from the eighteen men chosen from the many watchful thief can see them blocks away, they say, and if the rule is enforced a marked decrease in the early morning arrests is predicated.

The men also object strongly to the rule which will compel them to wear their coats buttoned tight, instead of with the upper two buttons, as is the present custom. They cannot get at their weapons, they say, should they have been allowed to wear what dress they been allowed to

E. A. Parker, chairman executive comour union indorsed L. P. Ward for Labor Commissioner, and hoped that Budd would see it to appoint him. Ward has been identified with labor organizations for many years, and was eminently qualified for the place. Still, had Budd selected a man from the ranks of labor, or even one who was fairly acquainted with the labor movement, we would not have a word to say against the appointment. But look at his strange choice.

A young politician, without any experience in labor matters. No doubt pressure was brought to bear upon Budd of which we have no knowledge. But he might have had respect enough for organized labor to have refrained from making an appointment which he well knew would cause the greatest disappointment in labor circles. mittee, Typographical Union said:

T. F. Burns, president Cigar-makers'

Union, said:

A most unsatisfactory appointment to organized laber generally. I do not know Mr. Fitzgerald personally. I understand that he is a friend of the Governor's, and that in his appointment the latter paid a political debt. It will be another four years of a salary-drawing figurehead in the chair of Labor Commissioner. The Labor Bureau may as well be abolished for all the good that it does labor. What has the incumbent done for organized labor? Only once has he been aroused from the lethargy of his $2000-a-year repose. Then he stood on both ears, and smiling at the Manufacturers' Association, flung his heels into the very teeth of organized labor. That was over two years ago, but we have not forgotten him. We do not expect much of Fitzgerald. He has neither knowledge of nor sympathy with labor. There were many men available, but business is business, and Mr. Budd is a business man.

Typographical Union, said: As regards the recent appointment of Labor Commissioner of the State it would not be fair to accuse the recent appointee of not being an acceptable person to either organized labor or the return from Los Angeles, and indeed the State at large until he has had a trial. That the State at large until he has had a trial. That organized labor throughout the State, and in San Francisco in particular, is surprised and disappointed at the appointment is the truth, for energetic work was being done here and in several of the large interior cities to secure the appointment of some well-known and able man identified with both the farming and mechanical interests of the State. Such a man would have proved himself one of the most important auxiliaries to the Governor's administration and would have been a potent factor in bringing this all important and beneficial office out of the rut into which it has fallen and making it, as it was intended to be when created, one of useful and valuable information to the masses at large.

In several of the large Eastern States—notacreated, one of useful and valuable information to the masses at large.

In several of the large Eastern States—notably Ohio and New York—the office of Labor Commissioner is now considered one of the most important within the gift of the Governor or the people at large. But in those places it has not been used as a political sinccure or to alleviate the disappointment of some brokendown chronic politician who is being constantly ignored by the people, as has been the case in California in the past. In fact, the last Labor Commissioner's report of California was not considered worth the printing.

Mr. Fitzgerald has a chance now that not one young man in millions ever had by showing a little tact and energy and throwing his whole being, as it were, into the intricacles of his office and placing it upon a par with that of older States. This he can do by becoming acquainted with and seeking the advice of veteran bread-winners in the field of labor, and during his incumbency eschewing the company and counsel of pothouse politicians. By so doing he can make himself a valuable factor of the State administration that will reflect credit alike upon the Governor and the commonwealth of California.

the position, but did not care much who got the place, so long as a labor man was selected. By a labor man I mean a man who has been identified with labor organizations in some way at some time. What does Fitzgerald know about trade unions? He is a politician, and as long as the Labor Bureau is run as a political office so long will it fail in the objects for which it was organized. What has Waits done? At the last session of the Legislature an effort was made to do away with the Labor Bureau. Why? Because it is well known that its operation under present methods is a farce. For this reason no appropriation was made for the next four years. This bureau costs the State over $7000 a year, and it is a fact that no good at all is derived from its existence. The story that Budd made the appointment upon the indorsement of the Oakland and Alameda Federation of Trades is not true. This body was asked to indorse Fitzgerald, but refused point blank, and John Gelder, president of the Oakland Federation, so stated before a meeting of our council only a few nights since. The appointment will work a great hardship for labor.

W. F. Benoist, secretary of the Typo-DISLIKE BUDD'S CHOICE.

W. F. Benoist, secretary of the Typo graphical Union, said:

The appointment of E. L. Fitzgerald to the office of Labor Commissioner has caused something of a commotion in the ranks of organized labor. Irrespective of politics, the trade unionists almost to a man vigorously denounce the selection as injudicious, an insult to labor and explainable only upon the hypothesis of political pull. They say that the place has been given to a professional politician, who knows nothing of and who cares nothing for organized labor—a man who will follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, and draw a fat salary for ornamenting an office that ought to be abolished.

Some there are who take a different view of the matter, and say, "Let us see what manner of man this is whom the Governor hath chosen; let us not condemn him too soon."

Following are given a number of interviews on the subject with representative workingmen:

M. McGlynn, president of the Labor Council and editor of the Voice of Labor, said:

TILE MEIM DOLLOF DUILED.

The new police ordinances regarding uniforms and when they should be worn, which have been passed by the commission, are not meeting as a whole a generous welcome from the patrolmen and the patrol sergeants. There are some points, however, which all the outside men are quite willing to approve of, and prominent among these is the rule which demands that all members of the force on inside that all members of t Torms and when they should be worn, which have been passed by the commission, are not meeting as a whole a generation as a mendments. He then told me he was a candidate and would probably be appointed. About two weeks later a friend of his, a Mr. Green, called upon me with a request for my indorsement either as a private citizen or as the president of the Labor Council. That request to request the president of the Labor Council. That request it positively and absolutely refused to acquaintance or connection with Mr. Fitzgerald.

As to his probable conduct of the office, I can only say that he appears to be an intelligent young man, desirous of making a mark in the political world. I believe the trades unionist will not allow any chagrin they may feel over the slight given their membership by the Governor to deter them from giving Mr. Fitzgerald all the assistance possible in his work. They may consider that the Governor did not act in the wisest manner by ignoring their claims to the office and by choosing a politician rather than a man who had made some reputation as a student of politico-economic matters. But that is another story.

William Zahn, secretary Brewery Workmen's Union, said:

In the appointment of Fitzgerald Governor are the steady of the office and those duty keeps them upon the street. Under the new rule, however, every man connected with the police, with one or two exceptions of high officials, and also in the case of the detectives, must wear his unitative feel that a certainty of deliverance is at hand.

The rule which demands that uniforms be worn at all times is meeting with a great deal of opposition. The men forming the watches which go on at midnight have been allowed to wear what dress they pleased. The men say that when attired in plain clothes they have much more opportunity to catch law-breakers than when conspicuously dressed in shining buttons and a long and unmistakable uniforn coat.

With Rainey made the latter induce Mr. Daggett to go to Sacramento to ask for the place of messenger to Registrar Hinton for Healey Davis, Lannigan's fidus acnates.

The first policeman who was caught in a crowd felt for his club, but some quick-witted rioter had lifted it out of the sling, and before the policeman could unbutton his coat to draw more deadly weapons, his own club was used with vigor upon his head. It came to such a state that the men could not wear their weapons outside, and as with a buttoned coat they could not draw them from inside pockets with anything like rapidity, a compromise was finally of the bituminous-pavement steal which the Mayor vetoed the other day."

In speaking of the reward accorded the Senators who voted for the railroad bills and for Mr. Daggett Mr. Popper paid his compliments especially to Senator Arms. He said he was not able to say whether Mr. Arms was violating the laws by occupying a Federal position while still acting as State Senator. He knew he was acting contrary to the spirit of the law, though.

"Mr. Arms represents a workingman's action settles this question until the next session." like rapidity, a compromise was finally made on two buttons. This so far has done well. The men do not deny, however, that the buttoned coat will give them a much neater appearance, and with the new helmet, which is looked on with favor, that they will form a much better looking body of men from a military standpoint. But they object to the buttoned coat at all times and to the uniform

Although the laundry of which he is vice-president is not doing the washing of the Mint, Mr. Biggy is not sure that it will not be called upon to resume that work before long. Many of the boys have been eager to visit Stockton, but that city is not prepared for the celebration this year, its attention now being engrossed with the valley railroad project. Hence there is not a straw in the way of the Santa Cruz idea. The chief difficulty in regard to holding the celebration in Santa Cruz was the failure of the order to secure sufficiently reduced rates of transportation. The railroad demanded $2.50 for the round trip from this city, and such a rate met with protests on every hand. Now the railroad company has come to terms with a $2 rate, and this is generally satisfactory. Yes, without the shadow of a doubt, I may say, the coming Admission day celebration will be held in Santa Cruz.

HE WAS A FOREIGN CONSUL And Therefore State Courts Had N

Jurisdiction Over Him.

Juan M. Luco escaped from an attachment for debt yesterday through the decision of Judge Seawell, based on a decision America, residing in San Francisco, and was sued on a promissory note by Alfred H. Wilcox, the amount of indebtedness being $2000. He was appointed Consul October 6, 1894, and his exequatur was issued by the President of the United States December 13, 1894. The present action was commenced February 13, 1895, and judg-ment entered March 19, 1895, for the sum of $2540 and costs.

Judge Seawell bases his belief that he had no jurisdiction over foreign Consuls on the decision of the Supreme Court of this State in 1885, in the case of Miller vs. Van Loben Sels. The court then held that a state court has no invisidiation of an arms. State court has no jurisdiction of any action of law against a Consul of a foreign Government; that the exemption of such Consul from an action against him in the State court is not a personal privilege, but is a matter of jurisdiction, which is not waived by the failure of the Consul to plead it, and that such exemption may even be taken advantage of for the first time in the Supreme Court on appeal.

VISALIA IS HEARD FROM.

It Makes a Magnificent Offer to the San Joaquin Valley Road.

FREE WAY THROUGH TULARE.

Seventy Miles of Right of Way as a Gift, With Other Privileges.

The delegation representing the enterprising citizens of Visalia appeared before the directors of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway yesterday, and presented a proposition that is in every way remarkable for its generosity and its ring

Their offer was nothing less than a right of way through Tulare County and ample land for a station in Visalia, provided that the valley road will run into their bustling little city. They were: E. C. Farnsworth, Mayor of liam H. Hammond, County Clerk of tain, who lives near Hook's residence, Visalia and Ben M. Maddox, editor of the have disappeared. Visalia Times.

Mayor Farnsworth was chief spokesman for the committee. Said he:

for the committee. Said he:

We come down as a committee from the Visalia Board of Trade to make a definite proposition to secure the building of the railroad through Visalia. The proposition is that we would secure for them the right of way from the Fresno County line through the city of Visalia to the Kern County line, a distance of seventy miles, or one-fifth of the entire distance from San Francisco to Bakersfield. In addition to that we propose to give them ample depot grounds in the city of Visalia, and we have subscribed $25,000 to the capital stock of the road. That is conditioned on the main line being built through the city of Visalia.

As an argument as to why the road should main line being built through the city of Visalia.

As an argument as to why the road should be built through Visalia we call attention to the fact that forty-five years ago, when the entire San Josquin Valley road was open to settlement settlers first went to Visalia because it was the most fertile portion of the valley, and it is the oldest town in the San Joaquin Valley, established in 1850.

When the Southern Pacific Company was first projected, it started to locate its own towns as it went down the valley. Knights Ferry was the capital of Stanislaus County. Snelling was the capital of Fresno County. When the Southern Pacific people ran down to Modesto in Stanislaus County, they moved the county seat to Modesto, killing Knights Ferry, and Merced was made the capital of Fresno County. Fresno was made the capital of Fresno County, and Millerton has not even a postoffice to-day. They made the same attempt in Tulare County, but they did not succeed.

The local capitalists of Visalia built two letion has not even a postoffice to-day. They made the same attempt in Tulare County, but they did not succeed.

The local capitalists of Visalia bullt two roads from Visalia to connect with the Southern Pacific Railway. Visalia and Goshen road was built from Goshen, a distance of seven miles, and the local road was built from Goshen to Tulare City, a distance of eleven mies.

We have a great many wealthy people in the city of Visalia. The population has steadily increased, and to-day it is the largest city in the San Josquin Valley with the exception of Fresno. Our streets are paved with asphaltum, stores are lighted with arclights, houses with incandescent lights. We have a magnificent water system, and are going to build a cannery just as soon as we can get lower freight rates.

There are two ways that this road can go from Fresno to Bakersfield. One is by way of Hanford, just east of Tulare Lake, and on down to Bakersfield. Hanford is a splendid little city and well-developed. If the road goes from Fresno by way of Visalia it will pass through a county that is well developed, and could continue by way of Porterville, the citrus-belt of Tulare County, a locality that is growing very rapidly and is destined to rival Riverside in the production of fruits.

In the last five years we have planted about 7000 acres of peaches and prunes, and we now have in Tulare County about 600 acres of lemons and limes and several thousand acres of oranges. We have now the best produce we have ever had. Our potatoes are especially flue.

We appreciate the intelligent way the Call.

"The road is getting rights of way everywhere free," remarked Secretary Mackie yesterday. "In fact the directors cannot find time to meet all the delegations from the country that desire to come here and offer rights of way and subscriptions. We receive letters daily from valley towns asking for appointments with the Board of directors to present their respective inducements for running the railway through them.

"I might add that many subscriptions come direct to this office. A lady came in to-day and took 30 shares, or $3000 worth of stock. From day to day interest in the road grows more and more intense, for everybody sees now that the enterprise is an accomplished fact."

"Why the names of existence," said he. southern San Joaquin Valley would traverse a territory, every acre of which practically, would contribute to the traffic relied upon for maintenance of the road; whereas a road west of the main line of the Southern Pacific would pass through a less productive country and kirt Tulare Lake, a shallow body of water with a minimum area of 220 square miles (increased in seasons of heavy rainfall), which will contribute no freight. The country south of the lake for a considerable distance produces little. The grade in the territory between the two railways is not appreciable, the conditions are favorable for construction, and the river crossings for bridges are the best.

This territory covers an area of 400,000 acres, of which 385,000 are pow irrigable (including the pasture lands), and of the remaining 15,000 acres 10,000 may be supplied from existing irrigation systems, and 5000 acres in the southern part are susceptible of irrigation from a proposed system.

How C. E. Benjamin Was Presented With a Supervisorship.

RESIDENCE QUICKLY ACQUIRED

Elected From the Third Ward While a Legal Resident of Redwood City.

Supervisor Charles E. Benjamin of the Third Ward, protege of Dan Burns and a star member of the "solid eight," has ocfrom Redwood City and made him a city official. It is rather late in the day, though, to legalize an election that was clearly illegal, because, as a matter of fact, Benjamin is not now nor has he ever been a resident of the ward from which he was elected. For several years he has lived at Redwood City, and he lives there to-day, despite the fact that he has been paying for a room at the American Rxchange since September 27, which, by the way, he has

September 27, which, by the way, he has seldom occupied up to about two weeks ago, when stories of the scheme began to float about. Since that time he has been at the hotel very often. But even had he really changed his residence to the Third Ward on September 27 the required ninety days in a county could not have elapsed between that date and the time of election.

The offer of a Supervisorship from Dan between that date and the time of election.

The offer of a Supervisorship from Dan Burns came to Benjamin in the nature of a glad surprise. Until the call was made he had no more idea of running for Supervisor than of aspiring to a United States Senatorship. He had not the slightest intimation that Burns wanted him. To be sure he had been friendly with the boss for several years. They had been in Mexico together. Their families were on terms of special intimacy. But Benjamin seemed to be doing well enough as a bookkeeper for a Sacramento-street liquor-house, and not in urgent need of political office. As a matter of fact another man had been promised the place by Burns.

At the last moment, however, the plan

At the last moment, however, the plan was slightly changed, and Benjamin was ordered to gird up his loins and enter the ranks of political warfare. He was so overjoyed at the promise of a Supervisorship joyed at the promise of a Supervisorship that he started whispering to boon companions here and there the joyful news of his political ascendency. In the saloon owned by Dunn Brothers he raised his voice far, far above a whisper. His feelings overcame him quite, and in a burst of colloquial confidence he said in the presence of half a dozen men that "Burns had promised to move him up from Redwood City and make him a Supervisor." This was about September 20, and it came to pass that a supervisor. Their club meets on the first Friday of price street and has September 20, and it came to pass that a few days after Benjamin "moved" to San Francisco—that is he put his name on the American Exchange register, and he was assigned to room 46.

Mr. Benjamin lives with his family at Redwood City, but he has been missing the last train very frequently of late.

A Nine-Hour Pigeon Flight From San Francisco to Portland.

Secretary Bagley of the Pacific Pigeon Society Speaks His Mind.

The members of the Pacific Coast Pigeon Society are much worked up over the reports of alleged world-beating flights of homing pigeons that have found their way into certain San Francisco newspapers in the last few days. By way of information it should be said that the society in ques-Their club meets on the first Friday of every month at 330 Pine street and has been in existence about six years.

claim of a nine-hour flight between those points has been published, it behooves me as an officer of the Pacific Coast Pigeon Society and California Homing Club to take exception to such reports, which originate, evidently, with bird-dealers, and which are absolutely untrue.

"The greatest day flight yet made by homing pigeons is 530 odd miles between sunrise and sunset. It is rank nonsense to assert that any homing pigeon can fly from San Francisco to Portland in nine hours, even under the most favorable conditions. The California Homing Club is deeply interested in attaining desirable redeeply interested in attaining desirable re-sults in this field, but one of its prime objects is to confine its reports to records which are true and indisputable. Those alleged flights, which surpass the flights of fancy, while they exist merely in the allegation, nevertheless have a tendency to injure the honest sport. It has not come to the knowledge of the Pacific Coast Pigeon Society that any such flight as that between San Francisco and Portland was contemplated nor that any flight has recontemplated, nor that any flight has re-cently been made between those points."

W. S. Taylor of 34 Erie street decided that life was not worth the living, and shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning he jumped into the bay from Missionstreet wharf 2. Immediately there were a number of lines, planks and life-buoys thrown to him, but he refused to avail himself of the means of rescue and sank to the bottom. The body was recovered several hours later by Boatmen Jack Barry and Harry Johnson and removed to the

SHIPS TO BE BUILT HERE.

The New California Is Attracting Attention - The "Call" Praised.

Irving M. Scott has returned from the East, where he had been on business connected with building of warships on the Pacific Coast. In his absence he noticed the growth of the new California, and on this subject, as well as upon other matters of general public interest, he had much to say last night. He was asked about the object of his visit to Washington, and his reply was: "My work was principally to get an act of Congress to get some of the ships of war built upon this coast, and we succeeded in doing so."

In thus suddenly switching off into the plural Mr. Scott no doubt had in mind the public-spirited representatives from Cali-

"The feeling in the Eastern money centers is very favorable toward California at present. The belief prevails that California has recovered from her period of depression and this is the place to make investments. They are watching what ware doing with a great deal of interest. If the people will only get facilities here and so place themselves on an equality with the facilities there we will do as well as the East.

This problem is in the hands of the manufacturers themselves, and can only be met by them in supplying home wants at home as cheaply as abroad."

Speaking of the agitation to increase the population of San Francisco to half a million, Mr. Scott said it had attracted a great deal of attention in the Eastern cities, and feared it may bring an undesirable class of people here. This, he added, should be guarded against by encouraging immigration of thrifty citizens with some money and a desire to work.

But the worldly wise husband only smiled, as he glanced over the top of his newspaper again and said: "Perhaps so, my dear; but Maggie had better go down and see that he doesn't steal the coal shovel."

Maggie went. The wind whistled as she opened the door. The snow still glistened in the sunshine. It was still six inches deep on the level and drifting. It was still unbroken, save for the broad footprints of the old soldier headed toward the street corner. He had gone. So had the coal shovel.—New York Herald.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 10.—The share speculation on the Stock Exchange to-day was characlation on the Stock Exchange to-day was characterized by a firm tone, but the volume of business was light, and the movement of prices lower. The Vanderbilts were again in good buying, and the novement therein was continued, two of the group, Michigan Central and Canada Southern, making a new high record for the year. The reduction in the dividend on Chicago Gas to 1 per cent was offset by the semi-ordicial statements that hereafter semi-annual dividends of 2½ per cent would be paid. There were heavy supporting orders in the stock in the early trading, which caused an advance of 1 per cent, but after the announcement of the dividend realizing sales, and some small selling of the short account, resulted in a reaction of 3½ per cent, with a final rally of 1½.

The publication of the Atchison reorganization plan brought the stock into some activity, sales beimovement in General Electric. The stock made an improvement of 34 per cent. Distilling advanced 34 per cent, of which 14 was lost at the close.

North American was dealt in more largely than usual at 534@6. closing within 14 of the highest. In the final trading the general market was weak and reactions took place, but the closing figures were mostly higher than yesterday's quotations. Michigan Central was 114, Laad N. A., Consolidated Gas, Sugar and Tobacco 1, and C. C. C. and St. Louis 78 higher.

Sugar and Tobacco I, and C. C. C. and Sc. Itolis % higher.

Trading in bonds was fairly active and higher prices were the rule. Sales aggregated $1,469,000. Government bonds firm. State bonds inactive. Railroad bonds strong. Petroleum strong and higher; closed 150 bid.

receipts the grain markets, although very dull, were firm and the result of the day's trading was an advance of 1/8c each in wheat and corn and 1/4c in oats. Provisions were fairly active and higher, closing with a gain of 15c in pork and 21/2c each in Wheat opened quiet and steady at the point 23s 9d, February shipment.

where it left off yesterday. For May 54% c was bid and a few lots brought 1-16c over that. The general feeling during the remainder of the foregeneral feeling during the remainder of the forenoon strengthened a little on the bull side, but there was absence of existing outside and also a desire to trade among local operators. Fluctuations were confined between 54%c and 55½@ 55½c. The result in further decline was encouraged by the figures of the day's movement. The closing price for May was 55@55½c.

Corn was very much neglected, but was upheld by the small receipts and the firmness of wheat.

45%c, with 45%c the opening price and 45%c the latest.

In oats, as in wheat and corn, few features were developed. Trading consisted principally of exchanging from May to June at a very small difference. The feeling was firm with corn. May started at 28%c, sold up to 29%c and down to 29c, closing at 29½c. July closed at 27%c.

Provisions were steady early, aithough lower prices were expected on the heavy receipts of hogs than had beer expected on the heavy receipts of hogs than had beer expected and a weaker market for them. There was considerable changing from May to more remote futures. There was a fair trade for local account, Armour being prominent as a seller early of May ribs. During the last hour Armour bought July and September ribs. This started shorts to covering and brought in outside buying orders, the market closing higher.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

were largely at $5@6. Cows and bulls were sold at $2@5, principally at $3@4, and veal calves were fairly active at $2@4 75.

Only about 3000 hogs arrived to-day. She smallness of the supply failed to strengthen the market, and a restricted demand enabled the buyers to force an average decline of 5c, heavy-weights showing the greatest weakness. Packers again held back, and they were assisted in their efforts to force a decline by the restricted shipping demand. Early in the day heavy packing hogs were saleable at $5 35.

In sheep there was weakness and dullness early

THE WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, April 10.-The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say to morrow: The demand during the past week has run to foreign wools, in-cluding Montevideo, South American, Cape and Canadian stocks. The transactions in foreign vance established abroad. Holders of domestic stock are content for the time being to let their stock go at current values. Some new Michigan wool has arrived, the first of the season, which by he way came in very good condition, showing hat great pains had been taken in putting it up for market.

The first new lot of Montana wool has also arrived, which is unusually early. This lot is a fairly good lot, but could be improved upon.

The sales of the week amount to 1,703,000 pounds domestic and 1,890,000 pounds foreign, making a total of 3,393,000, against a total of 4,183,500 for the previous week and a total of 2,518,000 pounds for the corresponding week last year. The sales since January 1, 1895, amount to 42,219,050 pounds, against a total of 37,051,400 pounds a year ago.

Assessor Dalton Creates a Stir Among the Corporations.

THEY MUST PAY MORE TAXES

The Young Son of a San Francisco Policeman Burned to Death.

Assessor Dalton's office was thronged with property-owners and the representatives of corporations yesterday, all striving to ascertain why the assessment values of ing what the value of Oakland properties are in a systematic way, and I believe that my figures are nearly right. If I wanted to know the value of a piece of land I called on a real estate man and asked his opinion. Such men ought to know what Oakland real estate is worth. When the question of the value of improvements came up I asked contractors and builders to estimate for me. Their opinions ought to bear weight. In no instance have I raised a valuation without gaining the opinion of experts, and should any question of my assessments be raised I think I will be able to show that they are just and will be able to show that they are just and equable.

"One of the most amusing incidents that has happened to-day was the visit of Head Bookkeeper Watkinson of the Contra Costa Water Company, who called in to leave a statement of the property of the company. On looking at the document I at once saw that the corporation had not placed a valuation on a single bit of property helpoging to it, merely giving a list of matter drop there.

"I didn't tell him that I had already

*I didn't tell him that I had already secured an estimate of the belongings of the company to the last dollar, and have the figures all ready for use when they are needed. As a matter of fact I have not made these figures public yet, but you can say the assessed value of their property will be more like $1,250,000 or perhaps $1,500,000 than the $720,000 on which they paid taxes last year. The trouble with the Contra Costa Water Company is that if they make a sworn statement of the value of their property, such as I would accept, it will be used by the City Council as a basis for fixing water rates, and the company might lose more in revenues through that source than the extra taxes I might make them pay would amount to.

A Child Killed.

Word was received by the Coroner last night that John Alavado, a child, 2 years old, had been killed at Niles by a runaway team. The little one with his mother was crossing the road near the station when the team broke away from the post to which it was hitched and started down the road at a high rate of speed. Mrs. Alavado made a desperate effort to save the child but was too late and the baby was crushed beneath the wheels. The Coroner will make an investigation to-morrow.

"Other corporations have tried to convince me that their assessments are too high, but I cannot see it in that way, and I shall keep my figures as I have placed them. I hear some talk of a contest coming from roundabout sources, but I think that those who take any such action will find their hands full when I present my evidence to the Board of Equalization.

assessment, I am not prepared to say just how much I will raise it; but you may be assured that the increase will be a good, company's property is not in sight, so to speak, my aids have found enough already to raise the company's assessment by $500,000 at least, and the figures may be twice that before we get through.
"You will notice in some instances that the improvements on real estate have been valued at less than by previous Assessors. Buildings do not increase in value with age, while real estate, as a general rule, the military department, has signified his

W. G. Henshaw, banker, corner of Twelfth and Washington streets, was increased from $41,850 to $67,000.

The Bacon Land Company property on the east side of Washington street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, was increased from $149,750 to $195,000.

Mrs. M. A. Blake, southeast corner of Twelfth and Washington streets, increased from $59,750 to $92,300.

Crellin Hotel, Tenth and Washington streets, from $41,250 to $65,250. The assessed value of dozens of other properties was increased, though not in so marked a degree, and in almost every instance the value of improvements was slightly decreased. The aggregate raise in assessments so far will amount to nearly $2,000,000.

Among the corporations yet to be assessed is the Oakland, San Leandro and Haywards Electric Company, which has heretofore paid taxes on $137,000.

Mr. Dalton says that while he was a member of the City Council the attorney for the company stated that the road cost $750,000 to build. He will give the company a substantial raise, though he has not as yet investigated the matter thoroughly enough to say how much it will be. enough to say how much it will be.

The Cottell Damage Case.

The case of Frank Cottell, the lad who was injured on April 6, 1893, when the railroad ticket-office at the foot of Broadway was hauled to the corporation-yard, was resumed in the Superior Court yesterday.

The boy was placed on the stand and testhe boy was placed on the stand and tes-tified that he was in the crowd that was watching the procession pass along the street, when he was struck down by a beam, to which was attached a bell, which had fallen from the roof of the structure. He stated that ever since the accident his sight had been affected and that he was frequently subject to pains in the head and in other parts of his body, which had been wounded by the falling beam.

Some weeks ago General Booth, who conceived the idea of the Salvation Army, spent several days in San Francisco, and during that time he delivered a series of County posts of the organization and members of the Veterans of the War of the Robellion to accompany the parade.

The following have been appointed a distinction or actual knowledge rather than guesswork.

"The ranguments of some of these people amuse me," said the Assessor when 5 o'clock brought his day's work to an end. "They seem to think that I am merely raising assessments to carry out the piedges I made before election and that my figures are arbitrary.

"I went about the business of ascertaining what the value of Oakland provide it is a seen of the State of the First Methodist Charles and the seen to the first Methodist Charles and promulgating rules are arbitrary.

"I went about the business of ascertaining what the value of Oakland provide it is a seen to the proper of the veterans of the Vete eral received from his native land stated that Salvador was flowing with the blood of his former adherents. There has never been any confirmation of these stories, and the officers on the Colon stated that everything was quiet in Salvador when the steamer left La Libertad. Ezeta has always maintained that he would return to Salvador and remove Gutierrez from power, and the arrival of Castillos may have some bearing on his plot. credited with saying that it has always been a rule of the army that a soldier could not join a secret society and retain his membership with a church, though the rule until recently had never been en-

General Booth has now issued a new order, says Ensign Wood, calling upon all the officers to rigidly enforce the law. Captain McFee says that he has never heard of such a rule, neither has General Booth instructed him to draw the line on soldiers retaining their membership with soldiers retaining their membership with churches on joining secret orders. What churches on joining secret orders. What Captain McFee says about the matter, however, is equally as interesting as Ensign Wood's talk about the General's sweeping order. Captain McFee said yesterday:

I think Ensign Wood has been misquoted, for I know of no such rule in the orderbook, neither has General Booth written me on the subject. I want to say, however, that I do not think a man can serve two masters—that is the church and Salvation Army. When a man joins our ranks he pledges his word to devote all of his time and money to us. We are a church just as much as the Methodist, Baptist or any other denomination. A man cannot belong to a Methodist and Baptist church at the same time, can he? Then I claim that a soldier cannot combine church with his army obligations. When a man comes to us he signs a declaration, a portion of which reads as follows:

deciaration, a portion of which reads as follows;

"Believing solemnly that the Salvation Army has been created by God, and is sustained and directed by him, I do hereby declare my full determination by God's help to be a true soldier of the army till I die. I do hereby declare that I will spend all the time, strength, money and influence I can in supporting and carrying on this war."

Now, as recards secret societies I am opposed

Now, as regards secret societies I am opposed to them, because I claim that a man cannot be a Christian hampered by secret obligations. Something in the oath he takes is bound to conflict with his Salvation Army duties, and therefore he is compelled to do violence to his conscience for the benefit of one of these institutions. I was a Mason once, but I found that I could not be a Salvationist and keep that up too, so I let good fellowship go.

You may put me down as saying that secret societies and the church on one side and the Salvation Army on the other don't go. Of course there are thousands of Christian people in churches and secret societies, and I don't want to be misunderstood on that point, but the Salvation Army is a church, starting out practically on the lines followed by the Methodists years ago.

Mrs. McFee, the wife of the captain, was ow, as regards secret societies I am opposed Mrs. McFee, the wife of the captain, was not so sure about the rule in the order-book relating to churches and secret orders. She thought that such a rule existed, but did not know just where to find it.

Editor Millsaps of the War Cry was equally at sea concerning the correctness of the statement made by Enging Wood of nominations, though until General Booth announces that the course outlined by Ensign Wood is to be the future policy of the Salvation Army, criticism, either for or against the plan, will hardly be indulged in.

In a general way Rev. Dr. Mackenzie comes very near outlining the popular feeling. In speaking of the matter yesterday he said:

So far as I understand matters the churches So far as I understand matters the churches have been glad to give of their members and money for the work of the Salvation Army. The army as such reached a class in our communities and helped them in a moral way which could not be reached by the churches. The army has now apparently drawn enough of our members and money to feel and declare their independence. This is their unquestioned perogative, for which none will say them nay. It is also human nature illustrated in every such movement and was to be expected.

They have discovered their field and now seek to direct their forces more definitely. They probably know what they are doing and we would not question their judgment or motive. Personally, however, I think they will make a mistake when they draw the line of division between their work and that of the church as sharply as is predicted. This is a day of increasing convergence on the part of those working for a common cause rather than of divergence.

General Barnes obtained the money from Sharon and a "tip" was given the retainers to be on hand, and here the bombshell dropped into the enemy's camp exploded. After General Barnes had detailed the story Tyler arose, perfectly unconcerned, and declared the whole thing a clever trick by which the general had been duped. This, of course, exploded the sensation, but it proved the boomerang that led to his disbarment.

Dr. Merry stated yesterday that Judge Dr. Mackenzie in conclusion admitted that the church had certainly felt the benefit of the army's experience and that the members who worked for both brought good into both.

Yesterday Judge Hunt decided that Loughborough must answer, not being able to claim the privilege of a professional street grounds.

A Demurrer Will Be Put In by the Railroad Magnate's Attorney.

Collis P. Huntington is not in the State of California, and he has no intention of coming here for some time to come. The Southern Pacific officials say he is still in New York, and it will not be until some time in May, if he leaves at all, that he starts for the Pacific Coast. By that time the indictment found against him by the United States Grand Jury will have been disposed of, and the railroad magnate will then be able to come and go at his pleasure.

One thing seems to be settled. Huntington will not be tried in California. The warrant in connection with the indictment was yesterday returned to the clerk of the district with the indorsement, "Cannot be found. United States Marshal Baldwin swore that he had exercised due diligence in his endeavors to serve the warrant, but hearing that Mr. Huntington was out of his district and not likely to come here for some time to come, he thought it better to return the document so that some other steps might be taken.

The chances are that a certified copy of the indictment and warrant will then be ordered made and forwarded to New York for service. Huntington will then probably demur on the ground that the indictment does not set forth sufficient the indictment does not set forth sufficient cause for action, and, if the demurrer is the Attorney-General is said to be of the opinion that there is not sufficient evidence upon which to convict, the chances are that the above is the course that will

Woman is the course that will be befollowed.

The Federal officials excuse themselves for not having sent the warrant East before by saying they desired to avoid the expense that would have been incurred. They were also daffy expecting to hear that Huntington was on his way west.

"The Warrant will be sent to New York and served there," said United States District Attorney Foote yesterday when talking about the case. "A certified copy of the indictment will be made and sent back along with the warrant. If Mr. Huntington is there when they arrive service will be made. He may give bonds for his appearance here or else elect to fight the case in New York. In the latter event that would probably be the last that we would hear of the matter. Should he start for California before the warrant reaches New York Marshal Baldwin will serve the original on him here and then the matter will come up in the regular way."

As the Southern Pacific officials state positively that Huntington will not be here for some time to come the chances are that the famous breach of the interstate commerce law case will be settled in New York.

There is not generally supposed to be any very close connection between min-

Yet the placer mine staked off and notice posted on the beach opposite the plaza end of the streetcar line in Santa Barbara last week was the site selected by the Cit Band for the erection of their bandstand. The leader and business manager adopted this peculiar plan of holding the ground until ready to build. This is the first in-stance on record of a "brass mine."

the Pending Slander Case.

IT WILL BEGIN TO-DAY.

How"Gus" Downed Opposition to the American Sugar Refineries Company.

AGREED TO JOIN THE POOL.

But Mr. Searles Repudiated All His Fine Promises-Secretary Uhler's Report.

There will be two courts of inquiry in the Spreckels slander case this morning. One of these tribunals will hold court in the offices of Delmas & Shortridge, with C. A. Spreckels on the witness-stand; the other will sit in the office of Rothchild & Ach, 303 California street, with Claus Spreckels as the principal witness. There was a disagreement as to the mode of today's procedure between opposing counsel yesterday afternoon, and Attorney Ach threatened legal proceedings for contempt if Claus Spreckels does not appear in response to the subpena served on him by order of the court.

During yesterday's inquiry the report of Secretary Uhler of the Philadelphia Sugar Refinery was held in the hands of Gus Spreckels, and on this he was questioned and cross-questioned at great length without disclosing anything more lucid or definite in the matter at issue, namely, his account with his father, the defendant, than was learned during the inquiry on Tuesday. The witness, after much questioning, admitted that Mr. Uhler's account as given and the letter bearing on the subject were both erroneous to some extent.

Considerable time was taken up in discussing the question of adjournment. It had been arranged that the taking of C. A. Spreckels' deposition should be concluded yesterday or last night, and that the taking of Claus Spreckels' deposition should be begun to-day at 10 A. M., but the witness thus far examined has declined to answer so many important ruling of the court. This they desire to do to-day and thereby end the deposition of C. A. Spreckels. But the attorneys for the C. A. Spreckels. But the attorneys for the latter would not agree to this and intimated that it was merely a trick to block of law on the unanswered questions. the taking of Claus Spreckels' deposition to-day or at any time in the future. Therefore, as the two sides could not agree, the notary who issued the subpenas for the inquiry was appealed to. He immediately settled the dispute by adjourning the in-quiry and further taking of C. A. Spreck-els' deposition until 10 a. m. to-day. That is also the hour set for taking the deposi-tion of Claus Spreckels, and Attorney Ach,

Here followed a series of questions and indefinite answers relating to alleged threats by C. A. Spreckels to organize a sugar-reining company and float the stock in New York City, with the name of Spreckels attached, right under the noses of the Searies and Havemeyers. Mr. Shortridge said: Shortridge said:

So as to end this matter, and to avoid leaving any part of it untouched by question, I will ask you if a proposition such as I have named was made by you to Mr. Searles?

The question was objected to by Mr. Ach. who instructed the witness that he need not answer unless he wanted to. Gus, however, replied by making the following ever, replied by making the following statement:

When I was in Europe I received a letter from a prominent gentleman in Philadelphia, in which he asked me whether I would come back and establish, together with himself and a number of friends, a sugar refinery, to which I replied that my health at that particular moment would not permit me to engage in any business whatsoever; that I would see him upon my return from Europe. I saw the gentleman and told him that at the present moment, with the uncertainty in the tariff, and the possibility of adverse legislation, I did not think it was a proper time to engage in the enterprise; that later on perhaps I may be able to join him in such an enterprise. When I went to New York, and after my return from San Francisco, during one of my interviews with Mr. Searles, the question arose as to another refinery. I informed him that parties were ready to put up money for a large plant and had offered me a position, or rather, the management of such an institution. Mr. Searles begged me to try and head off the opposition if I could, and stated to me that if I would do so he would show me a way by which I could make much more money in the shares of the American Sugar Refineries Company than I could possibly make in engaging in business. He stated to me that they were about to form a pool in the stock; that is, he, and I believe Steve White and Jim Keene, would be connected with the pool. By "Steve White" I mean a prominent broker of New York. Searles stated that if I would do what he requested he would take care of me, and said to me furthermore that the sum which I might be able to make would be in the neighbothood of half a million dollars. I told him that I did not care to invest any money, whereupon he said: "Well, to insure your good faith in the matter I think you ought to invest ear at least $100.

SPRECKELS AND SON

hung for some time, during which I had many interviews with Mr. Searles touching this subject. He kept putting me off after frequent inquiries as to when this pool was to be formed, and one day told me that he had reconsidered the matter, and thought that they would not carry it out. To this I replied to Mr. Searles that I considered his action contemptible. I rose from my seat, left the office, and have never seen Mr. Searles since.

This was followed by a long line of questioning on the same subject, in which reference was made to C. A. Spreckels' desire to make money in the sugar business, either on the side of the trust or as an opposition. The matter of correspondence by witness with his brother, Rudolf Spreck-els, was inquired into. This correspond-ence referred to the formation of the pro-posed pool, and the matter of C. A. Spreck-els investing in it and heading off the op-position. In this connection Mr. Short-

Did you inform your brother that Mr. Searles or those associated with him would carry stock for you to your great profit, because you had been instrumental in preventing a new company starting in Philadelphia?

It is possible that i did.
Did you at any time say to Mr. Searles that if you were not taken care of you would go to California and get letters which would be damaging to the Searles & Havemeyer interests?

I did not. As stated before, I never made any demand on Searles or Havemeyer.

The matter of an accounting for the $2,250,000, received by C. A. Spreckels for his father from the sale of the sugar refinery stock, was again referred to. In this connection the witness stated $100,000,000 had passed through his hands while he had passed through his hands while he acted as vice-president and general manager of the Philadelphia Refinery.

The witness held in his hand a written report, which he said was made from the books of the Spreckels Sugar Refinery Company by its secretary, Mr. Uhler. The document was not submitted for record, but the witness gave the following figures as the substance of the report:

Received by C. A. Spreckels for stock of the

as the substance of the report:

Received by C. A. Spreckels for stock of the company sold, $2,250,000. Disbursed for Claus Spreckels, $906,706, paid into the corporation in order to bring the assets up to the specified amount of $5,000,000; paid to the United States Trust Company $570,000 for the redemption of certain collaterals placed there by Claus Spreckels and owned by him; sent to San Francisco for Claus Spreckels liabilities there, $450,000; commissions paid for a loan of $1,000,000, $75,000; amount which C. A. Spreckels said he never received, but which was transferred on the books of the company to the credit of $1,000,000; paid to the United States Trust Company as commission for acting as trustees, $2500, making a total of $2,164,206. This left a shortage of $85,794, which the witness said was nearly all expended in the payment of interest on various debts owed by Claus Spreckels.

In answer to questions concerning this

In answer to questions concerning this accounting the witness said:

The $75,000 commission paid out for the securing of a loan of $1,000,000 was an absolute necessity at that time, and my father fully approved of my action in the matter.

After more questions and answers to the same purpose the matter of adjournment was brought up and caused considerable argument on both sides. Mr. Shortridge desired to continue the examination of C. desired to continue the examination of C.

Attorney Ach declined the proposition, and in doing so said: and in doing so said:

It will not suit me at all. I will proceed according to arrangement to take the deposition of Claus Spreckels until such time as the examination of C. A. Spreckels can be resumed. At that time, or during these interviews, did you demand of Mr. Searles that you be taken care of by the American Sugar Refineries Company, and as a reason for such a demand did you say that you had made nothing out of the deal of the Spreckels Sugar Refinery sale in Philadelphia, and did you say that if you were not taken care of you would make disclosures hurtful to Searles or the corporation which he at that time represented?

I don't know what Mr. Hoffacker might have done or might not have done.

During the interviews with Mr. Searles did you say to him or make the proposition that unless you received some compensation, unless you received some compensation, unless you were taken care of by him or by the company which he represented, that you would organize a sugar company in Philadelphia, loaning your name—the name of Spreckelstoit?

The Report on the Depot Foundation Makes Strong Charges.

MIXING DUST WITH CEMENT.

Big Returns From a Small Investment by the Chief Engineer.

The result of C. J. Stilwell's investigation in connection with the building of the foundation of the new union depot at the foot of Market street will be laid before the Grand Jury to-day, it having been pre-viously submitted to Governor Budd. Mr. Stilwell was instructed to find out whether any fraud had been committed in any manner, either in the character or quality of materials furnished or in the way in which the materials had been used. He was instructed to find out with as much certainty as possible who the person or persons were who had committed such fraud, if such fraud existed. The investigation had its inception in a communication addressed to E. W. Wainwrights a member of the Grand Jury. The letter was anonymous, but it was afterward ascertained that it was written by Alfred S. Moore of this city. The letter was dated January 2, 1895, and stated broadly that although it was possible that the trauds were cleverly concealed, it was hoped that investigation might bring them to light. In his letter Mr. Moore said:

The people of this State were asked to vote for a so-called union depot under an act providing for the expenditure of $600,000, as per estimates of the engineer of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, and we are now given to understand that such estimates were at least $500,000 in error, and that the cost will exceed $1,000,000.

Mr. Moore recited in his letter the advertising for the bids for the construction of the foundation, and declared that when the bids were opened for the contract the firm of Bateman Bros. was found to be the lowest bidder, but that it was declared incapable of doing the work, and that upon that ground the board readvertised for bids, when the San Francisco Bridge Company was found to be the lowest bidder and was awarded the contract.

Howard C. Holmes, the engineer of the Howard C. Holmes, the engineer of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, was roundly scored by Mr. Moore and practically declared to be incompetent and dishonest. Mr. Moore went over the history of the cable railroad in 1889 and 1890, in which he was interested. He declared that Mr. Holmes, who was the trusted engineer, "constructed the road and equipment in such a faulty manner, either through lack of capacity or otherwrise, that it was imof capacity or otherwrise, that it was impossible to make use of it for any number of days consecutively, and finally in about a year had to be torn up as worthless."

Mr. Moore also declared that Mr. Holmes used most of his time attending to private matters and that it was due to his negligence that the Fremont-street wharf fell in and that the Powell-street wharf is now in a bad condition. He also declared that the asphalt laid on the State property at the foot of Market street is full of ponds and puddles as the result of faulty engineering.

Mr. Moore said definitely that Mr.
Holmes while the trusted engineer of the railroad as above "drew down" rebate on material purchased as a consideration for

The Presbytery to Urge the Organization of a Sunday-School Institute.

The Presbytery held two sessions yesterday. It adjourned from Westminster Church to the Presbyterian mission at 920 Sacramento street.

The morning session was taken up with the consideration of Sabbath-school work, and it was finally agreed to invite all the superintendents and teachers to meet with the Presbytery at an early date and cooperate with the pastors in the advancement of this work.

Dr. Minton made a spirited speech in which he criticized the work of the Sabbath-school conventions, and said that they were made up of froth. He believed in quiet systematic work in connection with the schools. Rev. F. R. Farrand, Rev. E. J. Matheny and Rev. H. F. Bevier spoke in encouraging terms of the Sunday.

The removal of old work, the mixing of cement, the provision for the arches and vaults and the manner of the building of the centers are all touched upon, showing that all these things were completely under Mr. Holmes' supervision. The sections of the Political Code referring to the duties of the chief engineer of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners are quoted at length and their provisions contrasted with the charges made by Mr. Moore.

The removal of old work, the mixing of cement, the provision for the scholar all these things were completely under Mr. Holmes' supervision. 'It's interesting to note,'' continues the re-port, "that this lot, deeded to Holmes for a nominal consideration, prior to that transfer was held at a valuation of $17,000. Alfred S. Moore, who says that he is familiar with land values, declares that he would to-day pay $25,000 for this same property if he could make as favorable terms for disposing of the remainder of the rock on it as is enjoyed by Holmes.

Remainder of the rock on it as is enjoyed by Holmes.

Samples of the rock were submitted with the report, which declared that in several places pieces of rock larger than the specifications required were found. The report also says that the work is being rushed rapidly, and that the samples selected do not agree with the requirements of the specifications; that the rock is not clear and appears to be of an inferior quality; that much mud and dirt can be seen in the broken rock coming from the chutes at Gray Brothers' rock-breaker; that there are no evidences of the washing of the rock, which is taken damp from the quarry. Comparison between the rock used by Gray Brothers on the depot foundation with other blue rock used for similar work in the city shows that certain specimens forwarded with the report clearly fail to meet the requirements.

Marsden Manson, a civil engineer under whose direction much of the seawall was built, states that the bine trap rock used was from the quarry on Douglass street, near Twenty-fifth, and despite the long

With reference to the cement, the specifications are quoted and the report of Lieutenant Kuhn as to its tensile strength. Lieutenant Kuhn declared that his tests prove that the cement, which cost the State 10 cents per barrel more than was necessary, shows great weakness and "on a seven-day test shows a loss of strength instead of a gain, as is usually the case." Lieutenant Kuhn having tested indiscriminate samples of the cement being used declares that the samples submitted "must have suffered deterioration either from declares that the samples submitted "must have suffered deterioration either from age or exposure to moisture, inasmuch as it was full of lumps."

The loss in tensile strength of the cement used by Gray Brothers in the building of the foundation is clearly demonstrated by technical reports, and in the second test showed an inferiority of 532 pounds to the square inch with the cement furnished for experiments by Grace & Co., which had been offered to the State. been offered to the State. The report says:

These several tests prove conclusively that although the cement used in the piers and archings of the depot foundation may have been furnished this State as provided for by the specifications there has been something radically wrong with the material. There is nothing in the specifications under consideration which calls for any test of the strength or quality of the cement.

"In the course of my investigation," reports Mr. Stilwell, "I was informed that men in the employ of Gray Bros. were in the habit of extracting one-third of the cement from all barrels received and replacing the tops on said barrels after doing so. As foreign cement is packed in the barrels by hydraulic pressure, for the purpose of reducing bulk to a minimum, the two-thirds still remaining in each barrel could easily be shaken and loosened so as to again fill the barrel. Thus, on a piece of work requiring say 300 barrels of cement only 200 actual barrels would be used. In investigating this charge I have found men who were ready to say that they knew this kind of work had been going on from the fact that they could not make a given quantity of cement go as far as it should and that when they drew attention to this they were told, with a wink, that contracts were being taken at very low figures these days."

WATER-FRONT

The Gang Rounded Up Near the Mail Dock, but Only Two Were Caught.

One Man Got Away From Three Policemen and Bullets Went Flying.

Guardians of the peace badly desecrated the peace on Tuesday afternoon in the vicinity of the Mail Dock, and for a short time the air was punctured by flying bullets which whistled over housetops and buried themselves in the fastnesses of Rincon Hill.

A gang of young water-front thieve were at work on Captain Bingham's lighters in China basin, and three of them were ing any attentions whatever from her former male acquaintances, and the result necessarily was friction, which finally led to an open rupture of their relations.

Several months ago Rogers met his wife in the company of a mutual friend, who operates a blacksmith shop on Valencia street. Rogers became very angry, and he made threats to kill the man who, he is convinced, has alienated the affections of his wife. Mrs. Rogers, in order to quiet her hot-headed husband, promised to acquiesce in his demand not to talk with this family friend again, and for a time the course of love ran smoothly along.

ers in China basin, and three of them were rounded up by Captain Frank Anderson and handed over to the police, while the Mail Dock detectives went in quest of three more. Three officers were in charge of Anderson's captives, but Joe Adams, the most desperate of the gang, who is wanted for burglary, got away.

Thomas Gardiner, a clerk in the employ of Bingham, learned that Adams was on one of the barges, and he forthwith ran around to the basin and called upon the thief to give himself up. Adams jumped up on the dock, at which Gardiner grasped him gingerly by the sleeve with his thumb and forefinger and told him that he was arrested.

and forefinger and told him that he was arrested.

"Then," said Mr. Gardizer, "I blew my whistle to Officer Bob Cockrill, who was sitting down some distance away. Bob never moved, and the fellow walked along with me a short distance, when he gave a sudden jerk and then he was gone. I called him back to give him four-bits for his good work, but he would not come."

Captain Anderson knew the haunts of the thieves, and as soon as he heard of the case he went after Adams. He found him in company with Bill Tully and Bob Griffiths, and covering the three with his gun he marched them to Second and Townsend streets, where stood Corporal Cockrill, Of ficer Joe Maguire and another policeman. At this time a boat with three more of the gang ran up on the beach in China Basin and Anderson went after the men. The young thieves darted up the bank and went down Brannan street pellmell and turned into first. Anderson fired three shots into the air and at the same moment two shots rang out from behind. Adams had slipped his handcuffs and was off like a deer, Officer Maguire firing two shots after him. The three men of whom Anderson was in pursuit ran up Rincon Hill and got away. But the official grip was tightened on Tully and Griffith and they were taken to the Southern station. in quiet systematic work in connection tup money for a large plant and had offered me a position, or rather, the management of such an institution.
